Philip Hood, Kristina Tobutt

Second Languages In Primary Education:

Foreign Languages in Primary Education Hans Heinrich Stern, 1963 This report of an international conference of language teaching experts held under the auspices of the UNESCO Institute of Education in Hamburg, Germany, April 9-14, 1962, reviews the whole problem of second language learning at the primary stage of education and identifies the pertinent related fields in need of further research. Following a brief discussion of arguments for early second language learning, it surveys extensively the results of practical experience and physiological and psycho-educational research that strengthen the argument for an early start. In the final section of general recommendations for introducing a language in primary schools are discussions of such problems as policy and planning, needs, teacher and student requirements, and course content, methodology, materials, continuity, and cost. Also noted there for those undertaking research are the consideration of variables in learning situations, the need for theoretical background from related disciplines, and a list of specific problems. The four appendixes that precede an extensive bibliography contain a list of participants, a summary of primary school language teaching, a case study of bilingualism, and notes on documentation and reports. This document is available for £2.50 from the UNESCO Publications Center, 317 East 34 Street, New York City, New York 10016. ab Teaching Languages in the Primary School Philip Hood, Kristina Tobutt, 2015-01-19 Languages are now a more important part of primary education than ever before, and all successful primary teachers need to understand the principles that support good language teaching and learning. This second edition provides a coherent overview of teaching and learning languages, combining practical strategies for use in the classroom with engaging coverage of how to teach, informed by academic research and theory. Key features of this new edition: Fully updated coverage of policy and curriculum developments, including the 2014 National Curriculum and the Teachers' Standards. A new chapter on curriculum planning and assessment for KS2. Expanded coverage of the transition from primary to secondary school and the implications for teaching. More examples of creative teaching and learning throughout. This is essential reading for all students studying primary languages on initial teacher education courses, including undergraduate BEd/BA with QTS, postgraduate PGCE/School Direct/SCITT, and also NQTs. Foreign Languages in Primary Education H. Foreign Languages in Primary Education Hans Heinrich Stern, 1967 Teaching Modern Languages at Primary School Richard Johnstone, 1994 Issues facing schools, teachers, and policy makers in the expansion of elementary school instruction in modern second languages are discussed, particularly in the context of Scotland's educational system. An introductory chapter defines key terminology, the transition from pilot programs to institutionalization, and discusses briefly the distinction between second and foreign languages. The second chapter outlines five different instructional approaches and offers examples of foreign language initiatives in Scotland and elsewhere in the United Kingdom, UK, Europe, and some other countries. Objectives and difficulties encountered are examined. Several concepts in second language learning and use are considered in the third chapter including use of language for real communication language as a dynamic system of rules and strategies communicative competence language acquisition versus language learning progression of skills and proficiency In chapter four evidence of instructional outcomes from UK elementary schools immersion research research on specific aspects of second language teaching intensive teaching first language literacy and second to first language transfer and learner age is offered A final chapter draws conclusions concerning starting age implications of language policy for elementary language teaching choice of approach teacher qualifications and implications for secondary education MSE
