Topography Plagued by Marginality in Victorian Novels Catalina Balinisteanu-Furdu, 2022-04-12 The purpose of this book is to analyse how marginality is experienced by the Other women orphans children labourers in Victorian literature and how these individuals succeed in transgressing borders or attempt at doing this The Other uses many strategies to climb the social ladder and to preserve a certain social position marrying into a superior social class subverting the master's position and usurping him acquiring education and knowledge to become superior tempting the master into passionate love affairs approaching interpersonal communication or staying true to one's own self defending one's moral values accepting lessons of domesticity becoming an angel in the house travelling to unknown territories exchanging reality for fictional worlds and so on On their way of achieving their goals the Others are shown in different spaces which contribute to the construction of their identity Our survey unfolds the complexity of the marginalization experience of the Victorian Others their individual or collective mentality and their agency Drawing on Otherness from six Victorian novels our book takes an interpretative approach The analysis of spaces revealed how the positionality of women or orphans or labourers in social hierarchies of gender race and legal status influences and even affects their legitimacy or access to a superior position Their agency has not always overcome their marginalization embedded within the structure of society but at least temporarily and gradually it has improved the women s living conditions by being rewarded with a beautiful family or by earning a living thus eluding the dependency on a man By contextualizing the six novels into the Victorian Age our survey will hopefully contribute to the understanding of women and of their attempts at emancipation by demonstrating how their positionality impacts their agency and their personality

The English Novel In History 1840-1895 Elizabeth Ermarth,2006-09-07 The construction of history as a social common denominator is a powerful achievement of the nineteenth century novel a form dedicated to experimenting with democratic social practice as it conflicts with economic and feudal visions of social order Through revisionary readings of familiar nineteenth century texts The English Novel in History 1840 1895 takes a multidisciplinary approach to literary history It highlights how narrative shifts from one construction of time to another and reformulates fundamental ideas of identity nature and society Elizabeth Ermarth discusses the range of novels alongside other cultural material including painting science religious political and economic theory She explores the problems of how a society as defined in democratic terms can accommodate political gender and class differences without resorting to hierarchy and how narrowly conceived economic agendas compete with social cohesion Students advanced undergraduates postgraduates and specialists will find this text invaluable

The Promise of the Suburbs Sarah Bilston,2019-02-05 A study of the fast growing Victorian suburbs as places of connection creativity and professional advance especially for women From the earliest decades of the nineteenth century the suburbs were maligned by the aristocratic elite as dull zones of low cultural ambition and vulgarity as well as generally female spaces isolated from the consequential male world of commerce Sarah Bilston argues that these attitudes were forged to undermine the cultural authority of the emerging middle class and to reinforce patriarchy by trivializing women s work Resisting these stereotypes Bilston reveals how suburban life offered ambitious women especially women writers access to supportive communities and opportunities for literary and artistic experimentation as well as professional advancement From more familiar figures such as the sensation author Mary Elizabeth Braddon to interior design journalist Jane Ellen Panton and garden writer Jane Loudon this work presents a more complicated portrait of how women and English society at large navigated a fast growing rapidly changing landscape
