lived where the railroad ran both ways She had often stayed long enough at the end of a section with her family to see the first glimmering streaks of the raw dawn of civilization usually helped out by the electric light but in the new and still newer lands to which her father's civil engineering orders called them from year to year there were not even arc lamps There was a saloon under a tent and there was the section house where they lived and where her mother had sometimes taken to board the men employed by her husband But it was not these in uences alone that had produced the young woman of twenty three who sat near Tarvin and who had just told him gently that she liked him but that she had a duty elsewhere This duty as she conceived it was brie y to spend her life in the East in the effort to better the condition of the women of India It had come to her as an inspiration and a command two years before toward the end of her second year at the St About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
