Rearing Responsible Children

Ronald G. Morrish

Rearing Responsible Children:

Raising a Responsible Child: Elizabeth Ellis, 1996-01-01 It has often been said Give a man a fish and he has food for a day Teach him to fish and he can provide for himself over a lifetime Raising a Responsible Child explains the phenomenon of the overindulgent parent who helps and protects too much and the underdeveloped child who never really learns to stand on his or her own feet Today many parents are especially prone to shower their children with love and attention and attempt to minimize stress by doing for them In the scurry of modern life parents often can't resist giving in to children's demands or solving their problems just to keep the peace While this is basically a loving approach it does not teach children how to be responsible and independent Parents learn the hard way that their overindulgence does more harm than good their children will only come to them with more demands and act helpless in the face of new problems If you find yourself entrenched in this pattern you can change by using a system of consistent straight forward and logical rules every day You can teach your children to take responsibility for their actions and earn their privileges and you will find perhaps to your surprise that they are willing and ready to do so Some of the issues this book will help you to deal with are The whiny and overly demanding preschooler The small child who throws tantrums in public to get his way The older child who is inconsiderate of family members The teenager who is constantly late for school The young adult who can't get her life together and mooches off her parents indefinitely Many parents discover that the tried and true methods detailed here not only help their children handle emotions in a more mature and constructive manner but also result in higher self esteem and a happier outlook on life

Negotiating Responsibility in the Criminal Justice System Jack B. Kamerman, 1998 With this collection of essays Jack Kamerman presents the first sustained examination of one of the underpinnings of the operation of the criminal justice system the issue of responsibility for actions and as a consequence the issue of accountability Unique in the breadth of its approach this volume examines the issue of responsibility from the perspectives of criminal justice professionals sociologists philosophers and public administrators from four countries Attacking the problem on various levels the essayists look first at the assumptions made by criminal justice institutions regarding offender responsibility then turn to the views of offenders on the causes of their own actions and to the consequences of offenders either accepting or denying responsibility These scholars also examine the social and psychological circumstances under which people in general accept or deny responsibility for what they do thus providing the basis for understanding the process of social distance as a major precondition for people to commit atrocities without seeing themselves as responsible Understanding the circumstances under which people either distance themselves from or embrace responsibility enables criminologists to make grounded recommendations for reordering responsibility in the criminal justice system and more generally for restoring a sense of responsibility to organizations occupations and society The substantive vehicle for this analysis of accountability and responsibility is the relationship between criminal justice institutions and the offenders who are under institutional control Aside from Kamerman the contributors are William C Collins Charles Fethé Gilbert Geis Robert J Kelly Alison Liebling Jess Maghan Mark Harrison Moore Paul Neurath John Rakis William Rentzmann and Jose E Sanchez

Raising Citizens in the 'Century of the Child' Dirk Schumann, 2010-09-01 The 20th century declared at its start to be the Century of the Child by Swedish author Ellen Key saw an unprecedented expansion of state activity in and expert knowledge on child rearing on both sides of the Atlantic Children were seen as a crucial national resource whose care could not be left to families alone However the exact scope and degree of state intervention and expert influence as well as the rights and roles of mothers and fathers remained subjects of heated debates throughout the century While there is a growing scholarly interest in the history of childhood research in the field remains focused on national narratives This volume compares the impact of state intervention and expert influence on theories and practices of raising children in the U S and German Central Europe In particular the contributors focus on institutions such as kindergartens and schools where the private and the public spheres intersected on notions of race and ethnicity normality and deviance and on the impact of wars and changes in political regimes

Children's Rights Law in the Global Human Rights Landscape Eva Brems, Ellen Desmet, Wouter Vandenhoe, 2017-04-21 Children's rights law is often studied and perceived in isolation from the broader field of human rights law This volume explores the inter relationship between children's rights law and more general human rights law in order to see whether elements from each could successfully inform the other Children s rights law has a number of distinctive characteristics such as the emphasis on the best interests of the child the use of general principles and the inclusion of third parties e g parents and other care takers in treaty provisions The first part of this book questions whether these features could be a source of inspiration for general human rights law In part two the reverse question is asked could children s rights law draw inspiration from developments in other branches of human rights law that focus on other specific categories of rights holders such as women persons with disabilities indigenous peoples or older persons Finally the interaction between children s rights law and human rights law and the potential for their isolation inspiration or integration may be coloured or determined by the thematic issue under consideration Therefore the third part of the book studies the interplay between children s rights law and human rights law in the context of specific topics intra family relations LGBTQI marginalization migration media the environment and transnational human rights obligations
