Muslim Midwives Avner Gil'adi, 2015 This book reconstructs the role of midwives in medieval to early modern Islamic history through a careful reading of a wide range of classical and medieval Arabic sources. The author casts the midwife's social status in premodern Islam as a privileged position from which she could mediate between male authority in patriarchal society and female reproductive power within the family. This study also takes a broader historical view of midwifery in the Middle East by examining the tensions between learned medicine (male) and popular medico-religious practices (female) from early Islam into the Ottoman period and addressing the confrontation between traditional midwifery and Western obstetrics in the first half of the nineteenth century

Inconceivable Iran Soraya Tremayne, 2022-10-14 Celebrating the 50th volume of the landmark Fertility, Reproduction and Sexuality series, this book offers a much needed analysis of shifting reproductive policies and practices in the Islamic Republic of Iran, a society that is usually represented as either revolutionary or oppressive. Instead, Tremayne reflects on more than four decades of research, arguing that changing reproductive behaviors on the part of ordinary Iranians must always be viewed against the backdrop of core cultural values and traditions which are often reinforced instead of radically altered by new reproductive technologies, juridical opinions and state policies
