The Race to Reach Out Michael J. Coyner, Doug Anderson, 2009-06-01 Most church members would tell you that theirs is a friendly congregation eager to welcome visitors and new members into their midst Yet far too many of these same congregations have trouble translating this intention into action Offering a friendly greeting to a new face is important but it is only the first of many steps that congregations must take in order to turn visitors into members and new members into committed disciples The authors believe that to assimilate newcomers into the life and ministry of the congregation the whole church system must be involved Anderson and Coyner demonstrate how to identify and respond to visitors in a nonthreatening yet interested way how to share information about them with the leaders of those ministries and programs in which they would be most interested how best to help them in their decision to become church members and how to help them understand and fulfill their own call to ministry in the congregation They insist that churches be motivated not by a desire for institutional survival or advancement but by a passion for people and their place in the kingdom of God Child Development: Day Care United States. McMahill,2003-01-01 On his second day as association minister for the United Church of Christ David McMahill received three phone calls from lay leaders who were looking for resources on how to evaluate our minister He knew of several churches in which a poorly constructed process for evaluating the ministers had spun out of control however and had gradually come to believe it is probably better for a church not to attempt an evaluation process at all than to do one carelessly or to naively use a design intended for a secular organization Based on the needs he saw McMahon began to work with numerous congregations looking for ways to review both leaders and ministries and developed the feedback reflection process he lays out in this book Based on sound principles of effective communication this simple system of asking for descriptive feedback about various aspects of a congregation s life together takes into account the specific setting and the unique relationship between minister and congregation Becoming an Enthusiastic Church John W.
