Reality Game A Guide To Humanistic Counselling And Therapy:

The Reality Game, second edition John Rowan, 2014-02-04 The Reality Game is for people who are or who want to be counsellors or psychotherapists. It is particularly useful for those training in humanistic or integrative psychotherapy and counselling. Discussing the skills and techniques used in both individual and group therapy, this is an essential guide to good practices for the professional humanistic counsellor or psychotherapist and also responds to the questions most often asked by those training in these disciplines. The Reality Game John Rowan, 2016-05-05 In the years since it was first published, The Reality Game has become a classic text. For all those training and practising in humanistic and integrative psychotherapy, it is an essential guide to good practice and an excellent introduction to the skills used in individual and group therapy. This new edition has been updated to take into account changes in the field and John Rowan's own work, while still providing guidance on establishing and developing the relationship between counsellor and client and covering assessment, the initial interview, the opening session, aims, transference, resistance and supervision. With the student's needs always at the forefront, this extensively revised new edition responds to the questions most often asked by trainees in these disciplines and includes discussions of ethics and new chapters on transpersonal psychology and on dialogical self theory. It will be a must read for psychotherapists and counsellors in practice and training, especially those involved in humanistic and integrative psychotherapy.

The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling John Rowan, 2014-02-25 The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling presents a revealing and stimulating account of the current state of training that demonstrates how training will have to adapt if it is to successfully meet the needs and challenges of the future. In an attempt to look afresh at the whole question of training, John Rowan proposes that there are three ways of doing therapy and any examination of training has to consider each of these: the instrumental, where the main emphasis is on treating the client or patient; the authentic way, where the main emphasis is on meeting the client or patient; the transpersonal way, where main emphasis is on linking with the client in a more personal way. Each approach makes different assumptions about the self, about the relationship and about the level of consciousness involved in doing therapy. By challenging the basic precepts of traditional training, John Rowan encourages the reader to reconsider subjects including the difference between counselling and psychotherapy, culture and ethics, the origins of disturbance in clients and child development. The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling provides a much needed new perspective that will compel all psychotherapists and counsellors to take a closer look at training in the field.

What's the Good of Counselling & Psychotherapy? Colin Feltham, 2002-12-26 Presents the case for psychological therapy as seen by those regarded as being at the leading edge of practice.

Francis and Informa Company Speaking the Unspeakable Lynne Gabriel, 2005-09-27 Are dual relationships always detrimental? Speaking the Unspeakable provides an in-depth exploration of client-practitioner dual relationships, offering critical discussion and sustained narrative on thinking about and being in dual relationships. Lynne Gabriel draws on the experiences of both practitioners and clients to provide a clear summary of the complex and multidimensional nature of dual relationships. The beneficial as well as detrimental potential of such relationships is discussed and illustrated with personal accounts. Subjects covered include roles and boundaries in dual and multiple role relationships, client experiences and perceptions of being in dual and multiple role relationships, developing a relational ethic for complex relationships. This book offers an insightful and challenging portrayal of dual relationships that will be welcomed by therapists, trainers, trainees, and supervisors.

The Therapeutic Relationship Petruska Clarkson, 2003-11-07 This text provides coverage of the uses and abuses of the therapeutic relationship in counselling psychology, psychotherapy, and related fields. It provides a framework for integration, pluralism, or deepening singularity with reference to five kinds of therapeutic relationship potentially available in every kind of counselling or psychodynamic work. The work incorporates training and supervision perspectives and examples of course design, uses in assessment and applications to group and couples, as well as to organizations. Dealing with an issue of increasing complexity, the book should be of value and significance to psychotherapists, psychoanalysts, clinical and counselling psychologists, and other professionals working in the field of helping human relationships, such as doctors, social workers, teachers, and counsellors.

Concepts in community care for people with a learning difficulty Patricia Brigden, Margaret Todd, 1993-11-11 This book provides all those concerned with the delivery of care and services to people with a learning difficulty with an up-to-date overview of recent development in the area. Three major themes are explored: empowering individuals, change management, and working with clients. Within this framework, the authors examine the historical context of current service delivery and the influences from Europe and America on care practice. Practical guidelines are incorporated for staff who might wish to implement some of the ideas within the chapters.
