Reallife Handicapping:

The Real World Roy Hewetson, 2015-04-28 A spirit is graced with eternal life and always bound to tell the truth but that doesn't guarantee them an existence any less corrupt than that of the humans they despise Hedstrong is a spirit capable of using human hosts to move between their world and the Real World his invisible home He returns one day after his host suffers an untimely death in a stately home to discover Antedote another spirit residing in the mansion and the pair quickly find friendship and romance until Upstart arrives Antedote's domineering attitude allows Upstart to win Hedstrong's affections as she leads him into the centre of a Spiritual World Council in the aviary next to the mansion It's not long before Hedstrong finds himself caught in the midst of an uprising as he discovers a council member trying to overthrow Jenius a ruthless dictator and the current leader of the council Meanwhile in the human world the last resident Lord of the Manor befriends Phyllis a young girl who he thinks is a witch On his death she becomes a volunteer involved with The National Trust purchasers of the mansion its contents and estate But all is not as it seems and Phyllis soon begins to communicate with the spirits much to their annoyance Along with two innocent trust workers the humans are caught in the middle of the spirit uprising Lives will be lost in both worlds but with Jenius protected by his Thought Processor Force can they succeed The Real World is an adult fantasy novel that questions modern life Set against the background of a National Trust estate this is a lighthearted story that will appeal to fans of fantasy fiction

Self-Handicapping Raymond L. Higgins, C.R. Snyder, Steven Berglas, 2013-11-11 The concept of self handicapping can be legitimately anchored in a variety of intellectual contexts some old and some newer As this volume reminds us Alfred Adler was perhaps the first to articulate the significance of various self defeating claims and gestures for protecting the self concept Thus the apparent paradox of defeat in the interests of protection More recently but still more than 30 years ago Heider's naive psychology added attributional rhetoric to the description of self defeating strategies While predominantly cognitive in its thrust the attributional approach incorporated several motivational influences especially those involving egocentric concerns Heider hardly violated our common sense when he suggested that people are inclined to attribute their performances in a self serving manner the good things I caused the bad things were forced upon me The notion of self handicapping strategies proposed by Berglas and myself a little more than a decade ago capitalized on these homely truths while adding a particular proactive twist We not only make excuses for our blunders we plan our engagements and our situational choices so that self protective excuses are unnecessary In doing so we use our attributional understanding to arrange things so that flawed and failing performances will not be interpreted in ways that threaten our self esteem in Education Sergio Della Sala, Mike Anderson,2012-04-05 In the past ten years there has been growing interest in applying our knowledge of the functioning of the human brain to the field of education including reading learning language and mathematics This has resulted in the development of a number of new practices in education some good some bad and some just crazy The good is nearly always sound cognitive research that has clear implications for educational practice The bad is the use of neuroscience jargon to lure the unwary and to give an apparent scientific aura to flawed educational programs with no evidence base and which no reputable neuroscientist would endorse The ugly is simplistic interpretation and misapplication of cognitive theories leading to errors in their application More and better could be done if neuroscientists and educationalists acknowledge the limits of their disciplines and start listening to each other Neuroscience in Education brings together an international group of leading psychologists neuroscientists educationalists and geneticists to critically review some of these new developments examining the science behind these practices the validity of the theories on which they are based and whether they work It will be fascinating reading for anyone involved in education including teachers psychologists neuroscientists and policy makers as well as interested parents Real Life Economics Paul Ekins, Manfred
