before the chronological end of the nineteenth century in ways that had significant impact on the development of Russian realism. Some chapters consider ideas more readily associated with fin de siècle Europe such as degeneration theory, bioterrorism, Freudian psychoanalysis or apocalypticism alongside earlier Russian realist texts by writers such as Turgenev, Dostoevsky or Tolstoy. Other chapters explore the changes that realism underwent as modernism emerged, examining later nineteenth century or early twentieth century texts in the context of the earlier realist tradition or their own cultural moment. Overall, a team of emerging and established scholars of Russian literature and culture present a wide range of creative and insightful readings that shed new light on later realism in all its manifestations.
