time Ryan Flannery met Elizabeth Masters was a meeting that would change everything for him and her He was knocked rocked and thrown And he didn't like it one bit He was someone who's been around the block a time or two or a hundred Definitely a hundred He knew way too much about the opposite sex that he's forgotten most of it and then He's too much of everything for someone like Beth She's working on a list of firsts first date first kiss first everything He shouldn't want her she belongs with someone better He should let her complete her list of firsts in peace With her past she deserves that and more But it's complicated Because he does want her He wants all her firsts And he wants her to be his first too in the way that counts the most His first love and his last His only Everyone remembers their firsts Especially them Retrieving

Many professionals in health education and community service roles are caught in a particular bind of identity they live in a complex social borderland of credibility and professional authority while experiencing or having experienced the same discrimination violence or trauma that they are committed to conquering For some the disclosure of their own stories of marginalization has become a tool for advocacy for telling a larger truth for others self disclosure is a more personal action intended to assist isolated others in developing trust and connection Linde Zingaro a lifelong social service worker and activist interviewed several colleagues who have chosen to speak out in this way talking with them about their ethics and intentions and collaborating to identify some of the risks of negative personal and professional consequences for the practitioner She uses their voices and her own to illustrate some of the ways that these people have learned to safely and effectively use the transformative potential of storytelling as significant social action This examination of speaking out as a meaningful social practice may help other workers activists and community researchers in their efforts to be heard in the
