

An underwater photograph of a diver in a blue wetsuit and scuba gear, positioned on a large, rectangular metal grate or platform. The diver is looking down and reaching towards the grate. A bright light source, likely a flashlight, is visible on the left, creating a strong glare and illuminating the scene. The water is a deep teal color, and the overall atmosphere is mysterious and exploratory.

Passage Through Deep Waters:

Passages in the Life of an Indian Merchant Helen Colvin, 1866 Passages in the Life of an Indian Merchant, 1868

A Door Ajar Thomas Gardner, 2006-08-17 Thomas Gardner argues in this original study that we are just beginning as a culture to understand the far reaching implications of Emily Dickinson's work. Looking at the way quite different writers have enacted and fleshed out crucial aspects of her poetry, Gardner gives us a Dickinson for our times. Beginning with the work of Lucie Brock Broido, Alice Fulton, Kathleen Fraser, and Robert Hass, Gardner moves on to analytical chapters and fully developed conversations with four writers in whose work he finds the fullest extension of Dickinson's legacy. The interviews with these four—Marilynne Robinson, Charles Wright, Susan Howe, and Jorie Graham—provide a particularly intimate look at writers at work. In returning to Dickinson's work, Gardner observes that contemporary writers have powerfully extended what he calls her poetics of broken responsiveness in which an acknowledgment of limits leads paradoxically to a deep engagement with a world beyond our capacity to master or possess. In the hands of our most important poets and novelists, Dickinson's emptying of the articulate self has become a potent means of addressing some of our culture's fundamental erotic, religious, philosophical, and social questions. A Door Ajar makes visible the Dickinson that will matter to writers and readers over the next several decades. Passage Through Deep Waters David Finnern, 1997-04-01 The Ladies' Repository, 1856

The idea of this women's magazine originated with Samuel Williams, a Cincinnati Methodist who thought that Christian women needed a magazine less worldly than Godey's Lady's Book and Snowden's Lady's Companion. Written largely by ministers, this exceptionally well-printed little magazine contained well-written essays of a moral character, plenty of poetry, articles on historical and scientific matters, and book reviews. Among western writers were Alice Cary, who contributed over a hundred sketches and poems; her sister Phoebe Cary; Otway Curry; Moncure D. Conway; and Joshua R. Giddings. New England contributors included Mrs. Lydia Sigourney, Hannah F. Gould, and Julia C. R. Dorr. By 1851, each issue published a piece of music and two steel plates, usually landscapes or portraits. When Davis E. Clark took over the editorship in 1853, the magazine became brighter and attained a circulation of 40,000. Unlike his predecessors, Clark included fictional pieces and made the Repository a magazine for the whole family. After the war, it began to decline and in 1876 was replaced by the National Repository. The Ladies' Repository was an excellent representative of the Methodist mind and heart. Its essays, sketches, and poems, its good steel engravings, and its moral tone gave it a charm all its own. Cf. American periodicals, 1741-1900.

Encyclopædia Americana, ed. by F. Lieber, assisted by E. Wigglesworth (and T.G. Bradford). Encyclopaedia Americana, 1832 The Law of the Seabed Catherine Banet, 2020-01-29 The Law of the Seabed reviews the most pressing legal questions raised by the use and protection of natural resources on and underneath the world's seabeds. While barely accessible, the seabed plays a major role in the Earth's ecological balance. It is both a medium and a resource and is central to the blue economy. New uses and new knowledge about seabed ecosystems and the risks of disputes due to competing
