The Passing of the Storm Alfred Castner King, 2003-03-01 Originally published in 1907 Alfred Castner King's unique and beautiful The Passing of the Storm survives as his most enduring work A rare example of epic verse it sends its readers deep into the heart of the ruggedly wild world of the late 19th and early 20th centuries blending together the pivotal events of that tumultuous era with an ageless tale of brotherly courage and love Even before his accidental blinding midway through life it was King's passion to forever memorialize the natural splendor and simple majesty of the American frontier and its humble working class But it was his continual struggle to come to terms with his late tragedy that gives much of his collected Other Poems their unique and intensely captivating voice The Passing of the Storm and Other Poems takes readers on a journey through the mind of King as he explores his mournful love of nature and a world now gone bringing them back to life as he could only do through words Alfred Castner King had been a lover of nature a man of the mountains and forests who had embraced the beauty of the natural world with his heart and soul His poems were written after an accident left him blind I have read his poems over the years and at times have been overwhelmed by the beauty of his words King's poetry possesses a spirit that reaches through time and beyond the darkness that shrouded the man

Losing Ground David M. Burley, 2010-04-26 What is it like to lose your front porch to the ocean To watch salt water destroy your favorite fishing holes To see playgrounds and churches subside and succumb to brackish and rising water The residents of coastal Louisiana know For them hurricanes are but exclamation points in an incessant loss of coastal land now estimated to occur at a rate of at least twenty four square miles per year In Losing Ground coastal Louisianans communicate the significance of place and environment During interviews taken just before the 2005 hurricanes they send out a plea to alleviate the damage They speak with an urgency that exemplifies a fear of losing not just property and familiar surroundings but their identity as well People along Louisiana s southeastern coast hold a deep attachment to place and this shows in the urgency of the narratives David M Burley collects here The meanings that residents attribute to coastal land loss reflect a tenuous and uprooted sense of self The process of coastal land loss and all its social components from the familial to the political impacts these residents concepts of history and the future Burley updates many of his subjects narratives to reveal what has happened in the wake of the back to back disasters of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita Search and Rescue United States.
