Passing Through Midnight:

Passing Through Lightning Mark E Benjamin, 2006-03 Passing Through Stanley Kunitz, 1995 Gathers poems from Stanley Kunitz including poems from his later years such as Halley's Comet and My Mother's Pears Self, Nation, Text in Salman Rushdie's "Midnight's Children" Neil ten Kortenaar, 2004 Neil ten Kortenaar examines the key critical concepts associated with contemporary postcolonial theory including hybridity mimicry national allegory and cosmopolitanism through a close reading of Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children He offers successive readings of Rushdie's novel first as an allegory of history then as a Bildungsroman and psychological study of the burgeoning of a national consciousness and finally as a representation of the nation He shows that the hybridity of Rushdie's fictional India is not created by different elements combining to form a single whole but rather by the relations among the elements Rushdie's India is more self-conscious than are communal identities based on language it is haunted by a dark twin called Pakistan it is a nation in the way England is a nation but is imagined against England it mistrusts the openness of Tagore's Hindu India and it is at once cosmopolitan and a particular subjective location The citizen in turn is imagined in terms of the nation Saleem Sinai's heroic identification of himself with the state is beaten out of him until at the end he sees himself as the Common Man at the mercy of the state Self Nation Text in Salman Rushdie's Midnight Children explains the many historical and cultural references in a book that makes many demands on non-Indian readers and will be of interest to all who teach postcolonial and postmodern literature and to their students graduate and undergraduate Moreover as an original argument about how nation states are imagined and how national consciousness is formed in the citizen it will be of interest to scholars in the area of cultural studies and postcolonial theory whether in history literature cultural studies or South Asian studies
