Making The America Of Art:

Making the "america of Art" Naomi Z Sofer, 2021-01-29 By the end of the 19th century it had become possible for American women to identify themselves as serious Artists This was a relatively new phenomenon one that became possible only after American women writers had dismantled the conceptual frameworks that had authorized their artistic production since the early days of the Republic Making the America of Art demonstrates that beginning in the 1850s women writers challenged the terms of the Scottish Common Sense philosophy which had made artistic endeavors acceptable in the new Republic by subordinating aesthetic motivation to moral and educational goals Harriet Beecher Stowe and Augusta Jane Evans drew on Ruskin to argue for the creation of a religiously based national aesthetic In the postbellum years Louisa May Alcott Rebecca Harding Davis Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Constance Fenimore Woolson continued the process in a series of writings that revolved around three central areas of concern the place of the popular in the realm of high art the role of the genius and the legacy of the Civil War Sofer significantly revises the history of 19th century American women s authorship by detailing the gradual process that produced women writers wholly identified with literary high culture at the century s end Sofer argues that counter to conventional wisdom American women writers produced a large body of theoretical writing on the central aesthetic questions of the day Although the writers Sofer studies were finally unable to construct viable new models for women s artistic production their attempts to do so are an essential piece of American literary history Making American Art Pam Meecham, Julie Sheldon, 2009 Educating American artists Art into reproduction Touring America Landscape Accommodating American art Writing about American art End notes Latin American Art at The Museum of Modern Art Miriam M. Basilio Gaztambide, 2025-06-13 This book sheds light on an as yet unstudied aspect of The Museum of Modern Art s MoMA preeminent role in establishing the definition of the problematic term Latin American art in the United States from the 1930s to the present through its collection displays In examining the shifting categorization of Latin American works according to stylistic and geographic taxonomies we gain a greater understanding of the organization of the Museum s collections as a whole during the 1940s and 1950s This book is the first to document these institutional precedents crucial for the understanding of the articulation of a Modernist canon and its contested legacy today The MoMA is widely recognized as the preeminent institution that defined 20th century art through its collection shaping our understandings of the history of art with its hierarchies and exclusions as they sediment over time MoMA s holdings of art from Latin America shed light on a key period when the stylistic categories that have since come to be accepted by many today as the Modernist canon developed MoMA s collection displays suggest ways in which artists from areas of the world formerly excluded can be incorporated within today s increasingly global museums MoMA s approach may be compared to initiatives adopted by several museums since the 2000s creating geographically defined curatorial positions as a way to redress gaps in collecting art from Latin America and other areas of the world In this book author Miriam M Basilio

Gaztambide offers a closer study of the history of collection displays as a means to understand canon formation in modern art museums This work will be of interest to those researching Latin American American modern and contemporary art and curatorial and museum studies
