My Lady of the Chinese Courtyard Elizabeth Cooper, 2018-08-15 My Lady of the Chinese Courtyard by Elizabeth Cooper A writer on things Chinese was asked why one found so little writing upon the subject of the women of China He stopped looked puzzled for a moment then said The woman of China One never hears about them I believe no one ever thinks about them except perhaps that they are the mothers of the Chinese men Such is the usual attitude taken in regard to the woman of the flowery Republic She is practically unknown she hides herself behind her husband and her sons yet because of that filial piety that almost religious veneration in which all men of Eastern races hold their parents she really exerts an untold influence upon the deeds of the men of her race Less is known about Chinese women than about any other women of Oriental lands Their home life is a sealed book to the average person visiting China Books about China deal mainly with the lower class Chinese as it is chiefly with that class that the average visitor or missionary comes into contact The tourists see only the coolie woman bearing burdens in the street trotting along with a couple of heavy baskets swung from her shoulders or they stop to stare at the neatly dressed mothers sitting on their low stools in the narrow alleyways patching clothing or fondling their children They see and hear the boat women the women who have the most freedom of any in all China as they weave their sampans in and out of the crowded traffic on the canals These same tourists visit the tea houses and see the gaily dressed sing song girls or catch a glimpse of a gaudily painted face as a lady is hurried along in her sedan chair carried on the shoulders of her chanting bearers But the real Chinese woman with her hopes her fears her romances her children and her religion is still undiscovered I hope that this book based on letters shown me many years after they were written will give a faint idea of the life of a Chinese lady The story is told in two series of letters conceived to be written by Kwei li the wife of a very high Chinese official to her husband when he accompanied his master Prince Chung on his trip around the world She was the daughter of a viceroy of Chi li a man most advanced for his time who was one of the forerunners of the present educational movement in China a movement which has caused her youth to rise and demand Western methods and Western enterprise in place of the obsolete traditions and customs of their ancestors To show his belief in the new spirit that was breaking over his country he educated his daughter along with his sons She was given as tutor Ling Wing pu a famous poet of his province who doubtless taught her the imagery and beauty of expression which is so truly Eastern Within the beautiful ancestral home of her husband high on the mountainside outside of the city of Su Chau she lived the quite sequestered life of the high class Chinese woman attending to the household duties which are not light in these patriarchal homes where an incredible number of people live under the same roof tree We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience
