Museum Representations of Motherhood and the Maternal is the first book to address the underrepresentation of motherhood in museums Questioning how mothering and maternal experiences should be represented in museums Louise Clarke argues that such institutions wield the power to influence what we think about families mothers and the labour of care Using the term mothering to encompass lived experiences of mothering or caring that are not exclusively tied to sex gender or the maternal body Louise Clarke explores the ways that experiences of mothering can be represented in museums The book begins this exploration with Australia s Museums Victoria MV then expands to look at international cases Offering a blueprint for what Louise Clarke calls a museology of mothering the book imagines what a museum that articulates maternal subjectivities might look and sound like

Museum Representations of Motherhood and the Maternal initiates a dialogue between museum studies and maternal studies making it essential reading for scholars and students working in both disciplines Questioning conventional museum practices and the values that underpin them the book will also be of interest to museum and heritage practitioners around the world

Mother-Texts Julie Kelso, Marie Porter, 2010-07-12 Every day human beings tell and are told stories sometimes in obvious ways sometimes not Most of our communication with each other direct or indirect involves narrative production and reception Narrative is constitutive of human being However whose narratives are heard Feminists argue that the relations between language knowledge gender and power particularly the question as to whether man made and controlled language is a material fit to receive and convey woman's stories are critical issues because historically patriarchy has worked to silence women's dialogue Male knowledge unsurprisingly created and continues to create unrepresentative maternal narratives which lead to unreal expectations of mothers and motherwork It is therefore disconcertingly significant for mothers that neither mothers nor their motherwork have been considered worthy of historical record nor are historical records usually written from a mother's perspective Hence the narrative research in this book which gives recognition to motherhood mothers and or the work they do is valuable It adds to the rapidly accumulating maternal research research that is now available for the historical record Mothers are speaking up developing a canon of literature research narrated in maternal language and claiming maternal knowledge and power
