Cooper,2008-12-01

Trappist monk and best selling author Thomas Merton battled constantly within himself as he attempted to reconcile two seemingly incompatible roles in life As a devout Catholic he took vows of silence and stability longing for the security and closure of the monastic life But as a writer he felt compelled to seek friendships in literary circles and success in the secular world In Thomas Merton s Art of Denial David D Cooper traces Merton s attempts to reach an accommodation with himself to find a way in which the silence of the monk could live compatibly with the racket of the writer From the roots of this painful division in the unsettled early years of Merton s life to the turmoil of his directionless early adult years in which he first attempted to write he was besieged with self doubts Turning to life in a monastery in Kentucky in 1941 Merton believed he would find the solitude and peace lacking in the quotidian world But as Merton once wrote An author in a Trappist monastery is like a duck in a chicken coop And he would give anything in the world to be a chicken instead of a duck Merton felt compelled to choose between life as either a less than perfect priest or a less prolific writer Discovering in his middle years that the ideal monastic life he had envisioned was an impossibility Merton turned his energies to abolishing war It was in this pursuit that he finally succeeded in fusing the two sides of his life converting his frustrated idealism into a radical humanism placed in the service of world peace Here is a portrait of a man torn between the influence of the twentieth century and the serenity of the religious ideal a man who used his own personal crises to guide his youthful ideals to a higher purpose
