Stewards, Lords and People D. R. Hainsworth,2008-04 Stewards Lords and People analyses the role of the estate steward in the social mechanisms of later Stuart England Lords and Lordship in the British Isles in the Late Middle Ages Rees Davies,2009-06-11 It is well known that political economic and social power in the British Isles in the Middle Ages lay in the hands of a small group of domini lords In his final book the late Sir Rees Davies explores the personalities of these magnates the nature of their lordship and the ways in which it was expressed in a diverse and divided region in the period 1272 1422 Although their right to rule was rarely questioned the lords flaunted their identity and superiority through the promotion of heraldic lore the use of elevated forms of address and by the extravagant display of their wealth and power Their domestic routine furnishings dress diet artistic preferences and pastimes all spoke of a lifestyle of privilege and authority Warfare was a constant element in their lives affording access to riches and reputation but also carrying the danger of capture ruin and even death while their enthusiasm for crusades and tournaments testified to their energy and bellicose inclinations Above all underpinning the lords control of land was their control of men a complex system of dependence and reward that Davies restores to central significance by studying the British Isles as a whole The exercise and experience of lordship was far more varied than the English model alone would suggest Remains, Historical and Literary, Connected with the Palatine Counties of Lancaster and Chester ,1861 Mamecestre: being chapters form the early recorded history of the barony John Harland,1861 The Compleat English Copyholder, Or, A Guide to Lords of Manors, Justices of the Peace, Tenants ... &c. Being the Common and Statute Law of England, Together with the Adjudged Cases Relating to Manors, Copyhold Estates, Courts-leet and Courts-baron, Common Placed Gentleman of the Inner Temple,1735

The Lord's Woods Robert Arbib,1971 The Compleat English Copyholder : Or, a Guide to Lords of Manors, Justices of the Peace, Tenants, Stewards, Sir Bartholomew Shower,1735 Peasants Making History Christopher Dyer,2022-06-02 Peasants have been despised underrated or disregarded in the past Historians and archaeologists are now giving them a more positive assessment and in Peasants Making History Christopher Dyer sets a new agenda for this kind of study Using as his example the peasants of the west midlands of England Dyer examines peasant society in relation to their social superiors their lords their neighbours and their households and finds them making decisions and taking options to improve their lives In their management of farming both cultivation of fields and keeping of livestock they made a series of modifications and some dramatic changes not just reacting to shifts in circumstances but also devising creative initiatives Peasants played an active role in the development of towns both by migrating into urban settings but also by trading actively in urban markets Industry in the countryside was not imposed on the rural population but often the result of peasant enterprise and flexibility If we examine peasant attitudes and mentalities we find them engaging in political life making a major contribution to religion recognizing the need to conserve the environment and balancing the interests of individuals with those of the communities in which they lived Many features of our world have medieval roots and peasants played an important part in the development of the rural landscape participation of ordinary people in government parish church buildings towns and social welfare The evidence to support this peasant centred view has to be recovered by imaginative interpretation and by using every type of source including the testimony of archaeology and landscape

Chitty's Annual Statutes Great Britain, Joseph Chitty, 1912 The Craven and North-west Yorkshire Highlands Harry Speight, 1892 The Customs of the Manors of Braunton Robert Dymond, 1888 Report and Transactions of the Devonshire Association for the Advancement of Science, Literature and Art Devonshire Association for the Advancement of Science, Literature and Art, 1888 Gives officers financial reports by laws and papers written for the association The Antiquary, 1889 The Antiquary Edward Walford, George Latimer Apperson, 1889 Reports of Cases Heard and Decided in the House of Lords on Appeals and Writs of Error Great Britain. The Politics of the Prussian Nobility Robert M. Berdahl, 2014-07-14 Measured by its capacity to endure the Prussian nobility was the most successful in the modern history of continental Europe Throughout the long vicissitudes of its history this class the Junkers displayed a remarkable ability to adapt to new circumstances and maintain its own political power Robert Berdahl presents a comprehensive interpretation of the tenacity of the Prussian nobles from the late eighteenth century until the revolution of 1848 At one level he provides a richly detailed economic social and political history the story of how the landowning nobility coped with changes in rural social relations after the emancipation of the serfs in 1807 and of how it survived the agrarian depression of the 1820s by the development of capitalist agriculture At another level he shows how the Junkers developed an ideology of conservatism that justified their control of a society that was becoming increasingly bourgeois The domination of society by members of the nobility was traditionally supported by their experience in governing landed estates and particularly by the imagery of paternalism Capitalist agriculture undermined the old landlord peasant relations but the nobility continued to exploit paternalistic images of domination Originally published in 1988 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting
