Loving Her:

Loving Her Crazy Kira Archer, 2016-01-18 Iris Clayton is supposed to be on a tropical island soaking up the sun and a few dozen mojitos. Instead she's snowbound in Chicago overnight holding out hope the morning flight isn't cancelled. Good thing there's a hot cowboy to keep her company. And it doesn't hurt that Mr. Tall, Calm, and Sun-Streaked can make her tremble with one sultry look from under his well-worn hat. Montana rancher Nash Wallace sucks at ice skating, has no clue what a selfie is, and may be a tad averse to breaking and entering, but being with Iris makes him want to bend a few rules. Or hell, throw them out the window altogether. She's fun, spontaneously crazy, and can rock a Muppet fur coat like no one's business. He's falling hard and fast, but wanting to spend his life with someone after one night is insane. Except nothing has ever felt so right, and neither of them wants the night to end. Each book in the Crazy Love series is a standalone full-length story that can be enjoyed out of order. Series Order: Book 1 Driving Her Crazy, Book 2 Kissing Her Crazy, Book 3 Loving Her Crazy. The Essence of Time Pat Weisgerber, 2019-09-19 Pat and Tom's electrifying first encounter, falling in love. That love affair that sparked behind the scenes was relatively short-lived but was a turning point from being a shy, quiet girl to running a business herself. Their lives crisscrossed through to the end, providing an end to a glorious living. Pat became a young farm widow who knew about farm life and experienced living a life alone and struggles to raise four children. Financial hardships with farm life were overcome so the farmland could be salvaged for her family. This is what her husband had always worried about. Success was her reward for being passionate, prepared, and persistent. The farm land was taken over by her children, and Pat decided to work in Medicine Hat for a living. This was very hard because she gave up the lifestyle she loved so much. Tears were shed, but her heart danced for joy to see her children prosper. In this anticipated memoir, Pat paints a portrait of growing up in Saskatchewan, meeting her life-long love in Alberta, her decision to be a farm widow, the importance of faith, prayer, and family, and the unique joys and trials of life they loved so much. Trusting God moment by moment with concerns of her heart, and she discovered the awesome power that prayer released in her life. With unparalleled candor and wit, Pat shares never-before-told stories of what it was like to raise four children alone in rural Alberta. Pat recounts with warmth and grace the surprising, reliable lessons she learned in raising the children and surviving in this eye-opening memoir for single parents everywhere. Her book should inspire others to overcome struggles and have a zest for life. Women can do it. Her book explains that God smoothed her path, calmed the storms, helped her, and all she cared about was to be safe, and even made her way simple when she asked God to carry the complexities of life for her. These things did not just happen. Not without prayer. The family that prays together stays together. Her book may inspire others to continue with farm life if your heart desires. Anyone can do it.

Affect Intolerance in Patient and Analyst Stanley J. Coen, 2002 The ability of psychotherapists to tolerate their own feelings in the clinical situation determines how their patients experience and tolerate their own intense and often distressing affect Dr Stanley J Coen draws on his own struggles with the most difficult and challenging patients in his practice and finds that affect intolerance in both patient and therapist can be mitigated and understood when therapists broaden their emotional range enabling them to engage in emotionally richer interactions with the patient The more of their own feelings and wishes that clinicians can take responsibility for the more they can tolerate contain and eventually interpret what patients find emotionally unbearable Dr Coen describes in detail how he works with difficult patients trying to engage them as deeply and fully as both they and he can tolerate Coen focuses on the pragmatic use of affect tolerance in the clinical situation Real change through treatment requires mobilization of intense feeling including hate and love Therapists too must contend with their own emotional inhibitions and stalemates and he suggests collaborative ways to help them He encourages therapists to broaden their perspectives consult with colleagues listen to others write about their difficulties work in peer supervision and perhaps even go back to treatment themselves He counsels them to study one another's difficult cases in a spirit of collegiality to learn what is most effective for patients Coen shares his own experiences in troublesome clinical situations to help other therapists identify similar difficulties He shows how all therapists can be prepared to catch their own vulnerabilities and discomforts with their patients' passions and how they can then subject their feelings to self scrutiny By seeking to understand and confront their struggles with the feelings that their patients arouse therapists can more fully help their patients work out their conflicts and to expand their emotional depth A      The Right-Hand Shore Christopher Tilghman, 2012-04-24 While visiting the dying owner of the family's estate in order to secure his inheritance Edward hears stories about his family and land from an ancestor's 1857 sale of soon to be emancipated slaves to a doomed effort to cultivate a peach orchard      The Christian observer [afterw.] The Christian observer and advocate ,1864
