Ramutsindela,Giorgio Miescher,Melanie Boehi,2016-09-12 This book brings together recent and ongoing empirical studies to examine two relational kinds of politics namely the politics of nature i e how nature conservation projects are sites on which power relations play out and the politics of the scientific study of nature These are discussed in their historical and present contexts and at specific sites on which particular human environment relations are forged or contested This spatio temporal juxtaposition is lacking in current research on political ecology while the politics of science appears marginal to critical scholarship on social nature Specifically the book examines power relations in nature related activities demonstrates conditions under which nature and science are politicised and also accounts for political interests and struggles over nature in its various forms The ecological socio political and economic dimensions of nature cannot be ignored when dealing with present day environmental issues Nature conservation regulations are concerned with the management of flora and fauna as much as with humans Various chapters in the book pay attention to the ways in which nature science and politics are interrelated and also co constitutive of each other They highlight that power relations are naturalised through science and science related institutions and projects such as museums botanical gardens wetlands parks and nature reserves

Empire, Gender, and Bio-geography Nuala C Johnson, 2023-07-27 This book explores the relationships between empire natural history and gender in the production of geographical knowledge and its translation between colonial Burma and Britain Focusing on the work of the plant collector botanical illustrator and naturalist Charlotte Wheeler Cuffe this book illustrates how natural history was practised and produced by a woman working in the tropics from 1897 to 1921 Drawing on the extensive and under studied archive of private and official correspondence diaries sketchbooks photographs paintings and plant lists of Wheeler Cuffe this book advances our conceptual understanding of the invisible historical geographies underpinning scientific knowledge production by focusing on the role of a female actor in the complex gendered setting of colonial Burma Using a bio geographical approach this analysis reconceptualises female agency beyond authorship and publication and stresses how Wheeler Cuffe represents an instantiation of the occluded contribution of women to the historiography of natural history This book highlights Wheeler Cuffe s production of scientific knowledge about Burma in the context of her relationship as a white Western woman with local indigenous actors and details her practice of fieldwork and its embodied geographies in different parts of Burma while she maintained the domestic superstructure of a colonial wife This book will be of interest to advance level students and researchers in historical and cultural geography the history of science feminist geography women and natural history colonial Burma and imperialism and botanical art and illustration
