Native To Nowhere Sustaining Home And Community In A Global Age:

Native to Nowhere Timothy Beatley, 2004 Meaningful places offer a counterbalance to the forces of globalization that is overtaking our world and are an essential element in the search for solutions to current sustainability challenges Beatley draws on extensive research to offer a practical examination of the concepts of place and place building in contemporary life

Green Urbanism in Asia Peter Newman, Anne Matan, 2013 The world is facing an age of scarcity which will challenge all cities to reduce their resource footprint especially carbon improve biodiversity and at the same time continue to create economic opportunities and liveable places This is green urbanism Asian urban growth is leading the world in the rapidity of its change but how is it doing on green urbanism This book finds emerging innovations and first signs of green urbanism in Asia and suggests they may be the guiding light for the rest of the world The authors highlight seven archetypal cities exhibiting green urbanism the renewable energy city the bioregional carbon neutral city the distributed city the biophilic city the eco efficient city the place based city and the sustainable transport city The book is a must read for all who are concerned with the future of our cities as it instills hope that a greener urban future is possible Green Urbanism Down Under

Timothy Beatley, Peter Newman, 2012-09-26 In this immensely practical book Timothy Beatley sets out to answer a simple question what can Americans learn from Australians about greening city life Green Urbanism Down Under reports on the current state of sustainability practice in Australia and the many lessons that U S residents can learn from the best Australian programs and initiatives Australia is similar to the United States in many ways especially in its energy footprint For example Australia's per capita greenhouse gas emissions are second only to those of the United States A similar percentage of its residents live in cities 85 percent in Australia vs 80 percent in the United States And it suffers from parallel problems of air and water pollution a national dependence on automobiles and high fossil fuel consumption Still after traveling throughout Australia Beatley finds that there are myriad creative responses to these problems and that they offer instructive examples for the United States Green Urbanism Down Under is a very readable collection of solutions Although many of these innovative solutions are little known outside Australia they all present practical possibilities for U S cities Beatley describes green transport projects city farms renewable energy plans green living programs and much more He considers a host of public policy initiatives and scrutinizes regional and state planning efforts for answers In closing he shares his impressions about how Australian results might be applied to U S problems This is a unique book hopeful constructive and filled with ideas that have been proven to work It is a must read for anyone who cares about the future of American cities Planning for Coastal Resilience

Timothy Beatley, 2012-06-22 Climate change is predicted to increase the frequency and magnitude of coastal storms around the globe and the anticipated rise of sea levels will have enormous impact on fragile and vulnerable coastal regions In the U S more than 50% of the population inhabits coastal areas In Planning for Coastal Resilience Tim Beatley argues that in the face of such threats all future coastal planning and management must reflect a commitment to the concept of resilience In this timely book he writes that coastal resilience must become the primary design and planning principle to guide all future development and all future infrastructure decisions Resilience Beatley explains is a profoundly new way of viewing coastal infrastructure an approach that values smaller decentralized kinds of energy water and transport more suited to the serious physical conditions coastal communities will likely face Implicit in the notion is an emphasis on taking steps to build adaptive capacity to be ready ahead of a crisis or disaster It is anticipatory conscious and intentional in its outlook After defining and explaining coastal resilience Beatley focuses on what it means in practice Resilience goes beyond reactive steps to prevent or handle a disaster It takes a holistic approach to what makes a community resilient including such factors as social capital and sense of place Beatley provides case studies of five U S coastal communities and resilience profiles of six North American communities to suggest best practices and to propose guidelines for increasing resilience in threatened communities that can be enjoyed by all Market Place Susan Parham,2013-02-21 This book is about designing for food It explores three fast transforming urban sites in London centred on the regenerating spaces of Borough Broadway and Exmouth Markets It suggests that food quarters have emerged in each place modelling new forms of interconnection between physical design and social processes in which food related renewal is at the heart Using case study research informed by design morphological and social science techniques the book explores how the interplay between compact city design and social practices focused on food strongly influences the making of everyday life in these places It demonstrates that the quarters have at once enriched the experience of food and eating and increased urban sustainability and conviviality in and around previously moribund food spaces while paradoxically contributing to gentrification effects The book frames this experience within more spatially dominant approaches to city design which seem to close off convivial food options and choices that would support a more satisfying and resilient urban life The book draws some conclusions about the complexities of designing and planning for food led renewal that might apply more broadly to other places in London and potentially to other cities in future
