Empire and the Making of Native Title Bain Attwood,2020-07-16 This book provides a new approach to the historical treatment of indigenous peoples sovereignty and property rights in Australia and New Zealand By shifting attention from the original European claims of possession to a comparison of the ways in which British players treated these matters later Bain Attwood not only reveals some startling similarities between the Australian and New Zealand cases but revises the long held explanations of the differences He argues that the treatment of the sovereignty and property rights of First Nations was seldom determined by the workings of moral principle legal doctrine political thought or government policy Instead it was the highly particular historical circumstances in which the first encounters between natives and Europeans occurred and colonisation began that largely dictated whether treaties of cession were negotiated just as a bitter political struggle determined the significance of the Treaty of Waitangi and ensured that native title was made in New Zealand

Natural Resources and the Law presents chapters that comprehensively review agreements between Indigenous peoples and extractive companies. It situates these agreements within the broader framework of domestic and international law and politics which define and are defined by the relationships between Indigenous peoples, extractive companies, governments and other actors. The book presents the latest state of knowledge and insights on the subject and will be of value to researchers, academics, practitioners, Indigenous communities, policymakers and students interested in extractive industries, public international law, Indigenous rights, contracts, natural resources law and environmental law.

Mining and Communities Rita Armstrong, Caroline Baillie, Wendy Cumming-Potvin, 2022-05-31

Mining has been entangled with the development of communities in all continents since the beginning of large scale resource extraction. It has brought great wealth and prosperity as well as great misery and environmental destruction. Today there is a greater awareness of the urgent need for engineers to meet the challenge of extracting declining mineral resources more efficiently with positive and equitable social impact and minimal environmental impact. Many engineering disciplines from software to civil engineering play a role in the life of a mine from its inception and planning to its operation and final closure. The companies that employ these engineers are expected to uphold human rights, address community needs and be socially responsible. While many believe it is possible for mines to make a profit and achieve these goals simultaneously, others believe that these are contradictory aims. This book narrates the social experience of mining in two very different settings: Papua New Guinea and Western Australia, to illustrate how political, economic and cultural contexts can complicate the simple idea of community engagement.
