Promotion and Aging Faye G. Abdellah, Steven R. Moore, 1987 Development of the New Preventive Care for Elderly and Families Kazue Sawami, Wakaya Fujii, Chizuko Suishu, 2015-02-12 First of all in Japan the increasing severity and prolonging of care associated with aging has become a problem In order to prevent this the Ministry of Health Labor and Welfare has recommended the development of new preventative care programs So our research team also developed a preventative care program and verified its effectiveness Second of all the burden on family caregivers is great and family caregivers who leave their jobs in order to provide care are increasing In addition in Japan there is an overwhelmingly large amount of care for the elderly but family caregivers do not know much about caregiving Therefore it is necessary for the families of the elderly to gain information about caregiving If they were able to learn the methods of preventative care and form connections between family caregivers the burden on family caregivers would be reduced Also as family caregivers are often elderly themselves they need preventative care So we developed a support program for family caregivers and verified its effectiveness Social Determinants of Health in Non-communicable Diseases Katsunori Kondo, 2020-11-02 This book is open access under a CC BY NC ND 4.0 license This open access book is the first compilation that reviews a wide range of social determinants of health SDHs for non communicable diseases NCDs and healthy ageing in Japan With the highest life expectancy and the largest elderly population in the world Japan has witnessed health inequality by region and social class becoming more prevalent since the 2000s The first half of this volume describes in detail major NCDs such as cancers heart and kidney diseases diabetes stroke and metabolic syndrome The second half on the other hand explores various SDHs relating to healthy ageing All chapters review and focus on SDHs particularly health inequality associated with socio economic status and social capital which are widely addressed in the field of social epidemiology The book makes the argument that Health for All advocated by the WHO should be implemented based on social justice and benefits for the greater society Public health researchers and policymakers both in Japan and other nations will gain scientific evidence from this book to prepare for the coming era as ageing becomes a global issue
