Roman Shipping and Trade Joan du Plat Taylor, Henry Cleere, Council for British Archaeology, 1978 Bollywood, 2002

Trade, Commerce, and the State in the Roman World Andrew Wilson, Alan K. Bowman, 2018 In this volume papers by leading Roman historians and archaeologists discuss trade within the Roman Empire and beyond its frontiers between c 100 BC and AD 350 focusing especially on the role of the Roman state in shaping the institutional framework for trade As part of a novel interdisciplinary approach to the subject the chapters address its myriad facets on the basis of broadly different sources of evidence historical papyrological and archaeological demonstrating how collaborations with the elite holders of wealth within the empire fundamentally changed its political character in the longer term The Oxford Handbook of Roman Britain Martin Millett, Louise Revell, Alison Jane Moore, 2016 This handbook is currently in development with individual articles publishing online in advance of print publication At this time we cannot add information about unpublished articles in this handbook however the table of contents will continue to grow as additional articles pass through the review process and are added to the site Please note that the online publication date for this handbook is the date that the first article in the title was published online Roman Britain is a critical area of research within the provinces of the Roman empire Within the last 15 20 years the study of Roman Britain has been transformed through an enormous amount of new and interesting work which is not reflected in the main stream literature The Roman Impact on the Economy of the Lower Germanic Limes Region Erik Timmerman, 2023-09-25 The remarkable economic performance of the Roman Empire is now widely acknowledged Yet there is still much debate about its interpretation Although this debate is mainly conducted at the empire wide level regional syntheses are indispensable to its further advancement This book contributes to that purpose by providing a comprehensive account of the Roman impact on the economy of the Lower Germanic Limes region By drawing on a large number of scattered publications and archaeological datasets the work demonstrates that Roman rule also led to important economic developments in a part of the empire that was remote from its Mediterranean heartland

Early Byzantine Ireland Bernard Mulholland, 2021-12-01 This research was conducted towards an MA in Byzantine Archaeology and Text 2004 at the Institute of Byzantine Studies in Queen s University Belfast It is published with the aim of presenting this evidence to a wider audience and to inform future research by others in this field of study The archaeological and historical evidence presented and analysed is surprisingly diverse and relatively plentiful and arguably also compelling Is there any evidence for contacts between the Eastern Roman or Byzantine empire and Ireland and if so what form does that evidence take This book does much to inform that debate The Roman Fort of Vindolanda P T Bidwell, 2014-06-15 This work is principally an account of excavations carried out at Vindolanda in 1980 but also reviews the available evidence for the history of the fort and vicus Early timber forts were succeeded by a stone fort in the Hadrianic period perhaps in c 122 4 Reconstruction of some interior buildings were erected in the northern part of the praetentura they are thought to have been houses accommodating a civilian work force under military control West of the fort lay a number of buildings apparently serving as a military annexe rather than civilian vicus The fort was almost entirely rebuilt in c 223 5 retaining only parts of the original west and east walls After a delay of about a decade when part of the garrison was probably posted elsewhere a double barrack block was erected in the north east corner of the fort possibly to accommodate cavalry The building underwent a number of alterations and remained in use until c 400 There are slight indications of activity on the site subsequent to that date Rebuilding of the fort in c 223 5 was accompanied by construction of an extensive vicus which was largely abandoned by the last quarter of the third century Foremost amongst the finds was a fragment of a military diploma issued to a soldier of cohorts Tungrorum There were numerous objects of iron and copper alloy A considerable quantity of pottery was recovered from a sequence of third and fourth century deposits Coin finds from the fort and vicus are compared and their significance discussed

From Hispalis to Ishbiliyya: The Ancient Port of Seville, from the Roman Empire to the End of the Islamic Period (45 BC - AD 1248) Carlos Cabrera Tejedor, 2019-07-31 This monograph focuses on the history and development of the topography layout and facilities of the ancient port of Seville located in the lower Guadalquivir River Basin between the 1st century BC and the 13th century AD Until now despite its commercial importance little has been known about the port's exact position layout and facilities

Aspects of Industry in Roman Yorkshire and the North Pete Wilson, Jennifer Price, 2003-03-27 At the frontiers of the Roman Empire military settlements had a profound influence on local crafting traditions Legions were not just fighting units they contained a large number of craftsmen and the fortress would have been a centre of manufacturing activity A timber legionary fortress for example required vast numbers of nails many of which would have been made by legionary smiths on site and an army of thousands would require many more pots shoes and tents than could be produced by local domestic potters and leather workers But can all developments in local craft and industry be seen as a result of the appearance of the Roman army The ten papers in this volume focus on craft production in Roman Yorkshire and the evidence for the role of the army in local manufacturing activities Several papers examine broad questions surrounding the organisation and scale of production in urban and rural areas Others consider the local evidence for individual materials and production processes including those associated with pottery glass copper alloys non ferrous metals leather jet and building stone

Roman London Dominic Perring, 2002-11-01 First Published in 2004 Precious little of Roman London survives and the destruction of Roman levels continues fast as new office foundations are sunk ever deeper into ancient levels In recent years the close attention of the archaeologists of the Museum of London encouraged by the cooperation of City developers has allowed the detailed recording of much that is being lost In just four years from 1986 to 1989 work was started on about 200 archaeological sites in the City and many others were dug in the neighbouring boroughs Every year a mountain of new information and material is added to the stores of the Museum of London The first purpose of this book is to bring together as much as possible of this new information in the hope that it will allow progress to be assessed and new questions asked

Gallia Belgica Edith Mary Wightman,1985-01-01

Capital, Investment, and Innovation in the Roman World Paul Erdkamp,Koenraad Verboven,Arjan Zuiderhoek,2020-02-18 Investment in capital both physical and financial and innovation in its uses are often considered the linchpin of modern economic growth while credit and credit markets now seem to determine the wealth as well as the fate of nations Yet was it always thus The Roman economy was large complex and sophisticated but in terms of its structural properties did it look anything like the economies we know and are familiar with today Through consideration of the allocation and uses of capital and credit and the role of innovation in the Roman world the individual essays comprising this volume go straight to the heart of the matter exploring such questions as how capital in its various forms was generated allocated and employed in the Roman economy whether the Romans had markets for capital goods and credit and whether investment in capital led to innovation and productivity growth Their authors consider multiple aspects of capital use in agriculture water management trade and urban production and of credit provision finance and human capital covering different periods of Roman history and ranging geographically across Italy and elsewhere in the Roman world Utilizing many different types of written and archaeological evidence and employing a range of modern theoretical perspectives and methodologies the contributors an expert international team of historians and archaeologists have produced the first book length contribution to focus exclusively on physical and financial capital in the Roman world a volume that is aimed not only at specialists in the field but also at economic historians and archaeologists specializing in other periods and places

Glass of the Roman World Justine Bayley,Ian Freestone,Caroline Jackson,2015-07-31 Glass of the Roman World illustrates the arrival of new cultural systems mechanisms of trade and an expanded economic base in the early 1st millennium AD which in combination allowed the further development of the existing glass industry Glass became something which encompassed more than simply a novel and highly decorative material Glass production grew and its consumption increased until it was assimilated into all levels of society used for display and luxury items but equally for utilitarian containers windows and even tools These 18 papers by renowned international scholars include studies of glass from Europe and the Near East The authors write on a variety of topics where their work is at the forefront of new approaches to the subject They both extend and consolidate aspects of our understanding of how glass was produced traded and used throughout the Empire and the wider world drawing on chronology typology patterns of distribution and other methodologies including the incorporation of new scientific methods Though focusing on a single material the papers are firmly based in its archaeological context in the wider economy of the Roman world and consider glass as part of a complex material culture controlled by the expansion and contraction of the Empire The volume is presented in honor of Jenny Price a foremost scholar of Roman glass

Ships of the Port of London Peter Marsden, 2014-07-15 This report is the first full study of the remains of ships and boats used in the port of London from the first to the eleventh century AD Using evidence from the vessels from the waterfronts and from trade goods Peter Marsden has reconstructed the design and use of these ancient ships and brought together for the first time the accumulated evidence of over 30 years of archaeological research The remains of three substantial vessels are discussed Blackfriars ship 1 the earliest known seagoing sailing ship yet found in northern Europe the New Guy's House boat a river barge from the second century and the County Hall ship discovered in 1910 and dating from the fourth century Using these and fragments of different types of clinker built vessels found in the Thames the author examines the pattern of shipbuilding in northern Europe with the conclusion that London was the meeting point for several shipbuilding traditions of which the primary Roman tradition in northern Europe was Celtic The growth of trade from Roman times to the fifth and sixth centuries when London was deserted and from its renewal in the seventh century to the end of the eleventh century is examined through the evidence of the remains of imported goods together with the changing function of the port and the development of berthing practices
