that God's desire is to see a world where love prevails. The book draws on the teachings of the apostle Paul who wrote extensively about love in his letters to the early Christian communities. Paul saw love as the most important of all virtues and the ultimate expression of God's nature. He exhorted his readers to love one another deeply just as Christ loved them and gave himself up for them. For Paul, love was not an abstract concept; it was a tangible reality that should be evident in the way believers treated each other. The book also highlights the example of Christ who demonstrated the ultimate act of selflessness and love by sacrificing himself on the cross for the redemption of humanity. Christ's life and teachings provide a model for how we should love others, putting their needs above our own and seeking to serve rather than be served. Ultimately, the book's message is one of hope and encouragement. It reminds us that no matter how broken our relationships may be, there is always the potential for restoration and healing through the power of love. By embracing the teachings of Paul and following the example of Christ, we can build strong and healthy relationships that reflect God's love and bring joy and fulfillment to our lives.

The Foundations of Character Alexander Faulkner Shand, 1914. A scientific treatment should not diminish but increase the general interest taken in character. To bring together the various aspects of the subject which in literature are treated in isolation from one another to lead up to a general conception of it to study the methods by which the knowledge of it may be increased in accuracy and extent these are to make approaches to a scientific treatment of character. While I have had chiefly to confine myself to a study of the tendencies of the emotions and sentiments this has been throughout my aim. This book then is a study of method. Yet I do not claim that this method is essentially new. It is in the main the hypothetical method of the sciences; it has had to be adapted to the treatment of character that is all. A complete science of mind would include a science of character. The best approach to such a science is through the study of the primary emotions and their connected instincts. This study is to be directed to an analysis of tendencies.
