Nation Language And The Ethics Of Translation:

Nation, Language, and the Ethics of Translation Sandra Bermann, Michael Wood, 2005-07-05 In recent years scholarship on translation has moved well beyond the technicalities of converting one language into another and beyond conventional translation theory. With new technologies blurring distinctions between the original and its reproductions and with globalization redefining national and cultural boundaries, translation is now emerging as a reformulated subject of lively interdisciplinary debate. Nation Language and the Ethics of Translation enters the heart of this debate. It covers an exceptional range of topics from simultaneous translation to legal theory from the language of exile to the language of new nations from the press to the cinema and cultures and languages from contemporary Bengal to ancient Japan from translations of Homer to the work of Don DeLillo. All twenty-two essays by leading voices including Gayatri Spivak and the late Edward Said are provocative and persuasive. The book's four sections—Translation as Medium and across Media, The Ethics of Translation, Translation and Difference, and Beyond the Nation—together provide a comprehensive view of current thinking on nationality and translation, one that will be widely consulted for years to come. The contributors are Jonathan E. Abel, Emily Apter, Sandra Bermann, Vilashini Cooppan, Stanley Corngold, David Damrosch, Robert Eaglestone, Stathis Gourgouris, Pierre Legrand, Jacques Lezra, Françoise Lionnet, Sylvia Molloy, Yopie Prins, Edward Said, Azade Seyhan, Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak, Henry Staten, Lawrence Venuti, Lynn Visson, Gauri Viswanathan, Samuel Weber, and Michael Wood.

Collection of newly commissioned essays tracing cutting edge developments in children s literature research Reinventing Babel in Medieval French Emma Campbell,2023-09-09 How can untranslatability help us to think about the historical as well as the cultural and linguistic dimensions of translation For the past two centuries theoretical debates about translation have responded to the idea that translation overcomes linguistic and cultural incommensurability while never inscribing full equivalence More recently untranslatability has been foregrounded in projects at the intersections between translation studies and other disciplines notably philosophy and comparative literature The critical turn to untranslatability re-emphasizes the importance of translation s negotiation with foreignness or difference and prompts further reflection on how that might be understood historically philosophically and ethically If translation never replicates a source exactly what does it mean to communicate some elements and not others What or who determines what is translatable or what can or cannot be recontextualized What linguistic political cultural or historical factors condition such determinations Central to these questions is the way translation negotiates with and inscribes asymmetries among languages and cultures operations that are inevitably ethical and political as well as linguistic This book explores how approaching questions of translatability and untranslatability through premodern texts and languages can inform broader interdisciplinary conversations about translation as a concept and a practice Working with case studies drawn from the francophone cultures of Flanders England and northern France it explores how medieval texts challenge modern definitions of language text and translation and in so doing how such texts can open sites of variance and non identity within what later became the hegemonic global languages we know today

Language Smugglers Arianne Des Rochers,2023-08-10 Translation is commonly understood as the rendering of a text from one language to another a border crossing activity where the border is a linguistic one But what if the text one is translating is not written in one language indeed what if no text is ever written in a single language In recent years many books of fiction and poetry published in so called Canada especially by queer racialized and Indigenous writers have challenged the structural notions of linguistic autonomy and singularity that underlie not only the formation of the nation state but the bulk of Western translation theory and the field of comparative literature Language Smugglers argues that the postnational cartographies of language found in minoritized Canadian literary works force a radical redefinition of the activity of translation altogether Canada is revealed as an especially rich site for this study with its official bilingualism and multiculturalism policies its robust translation industry and practitioners and the strong challenges to its national narratives and accompanying language politics presented by Indigenous people the province of Qu bec and high levels of immigration

Reversing F O Matthiessen's famous description of translation as an Elizabethan art Elizabethan literature may well be considered an art of translation Amidst a climate of intense intercultural and intertextual exchange the cultural figure of translatio studii had become a formative concept in most European vernacular writing of the period However due to the comparatively marginal status of English in European literary culture it was above all translation in the literal sense that became the dominant mode of applying this concept in late 16th century England Translations into English were not only produced on an unprecedented scale they also became a key site for critical debate where contemporary discussions about authorship style and the development of a specifically English literary identity converged The essays in this volume set out to explore Elizabethan translation as a literary practice and as a crucial influence on English literature They analyse the competitive balancing of voices and authorities found in these texts and examine the ways in which both translated models and English literary culture were creatively transformed in the process of appropriation Law, Language and Translation Rosanna Masiola, Renato Tomei, 2015-02-21 This book is a survey of how law language and translation overlap with concepts crimes and conflicts It is a transdisciplinary survey exploring the dynamics of colonialism and the globalization of crime Concepts and conflicts are used here to mean conflicting interpretations engendering real conflicts Beginning with theoretical issues and hermeneutics in chapter 2 the study moves on to definitions and applications in chapter 3 introducing cattle stealing as a comparative theme and global case study in chapter 4 Cattle stealing is also known in English as rustling duffing raiding stock theft lifting and predatorial larceny Crime and punishment are differently perceived depending on cultures and legal systems Captain Starlight was a legendary duffer in India lifting a sacred cow is a sacrilegious act Following the globalization of crime chapter 5 deals with human rights ethnic cleansing and genocide International treaties in translation set the scene for two world wars Introducing unequal treaties e g Hong Kong chapter 6 highlights disasters caused by treaties in translation Cases feature American Indians the trail of broken treaties Maoris Treaty of Waitangi and East Africa Treaty of Wuchale
