Constructing National Security Jarrod Hayes, 2013-10-07 Jarrod Hayes explores why democracies tend not to use military force against each other He argues that democratic identity the shared understanding within democracies of who we are and what we expect from each other makes it difficult for political leaders to construct external democracies as threats At the same time he finds that democratic identity enables political actors to construct external non democracies as threats To explore his argument he looks at US relations with two rising powers India and China Through his argument and case studies Professor Hayes addresses not just the democratic peace but also the larger processes of threat construction in international security the role of domestic institutions in international relations and the possibility for conflict between the United States and the world s two most populous countries
