Nationalization A Study In The Protection Of Alien Property In International Law:

Nationalization Isi Foighel, 1957 The International Law of Property John G. Sprankling, 2014-05-01 Does a right to property exist under international law The traditional answer to this question is no a right to property can only arise under the domestic law of a particular nation But the view that property rights are exclusively governed by national law is obsolete Identifiable areas of property law have emerged at the international level and the foundation is now arguably being laid for a comprehensive international regime This book provides a detailed investigation into this developing international property law It demonstrates how the evolution of international property law has been influenced by major economic political and technological changes the embrace of private property by former socialist states after the end of the Cold War the globalization of trade the birth of new technologies capable of exploiting the global commons the rise of digital property and the increasing recognition of the human right to property The first part of the book analyzes how international law impacts rights in specific types of property In some situations international law creates property rights such as rights in aboriginal lands deep seabed minerals and satellite orbits In other areas it harmonizes property rights that arise at the national level such as rights in intellectual property rights in foreign investments and security interests in personal property Finally it restricts property rights that may be recognized at the national level such as rights in celestial bodies contraband and slaves The second part of the book explores the thesis that a global right to property should be recognized as a general matter not merely as a moral precept but rather as an entitlement that all nations must honour It establishes the components of such a right arguing that the right to property at the international level should be seen in the context of five key components of ownership acquisition use destruction exclusion and transfer This highly innovative book makes an important contribution to how we conceptualize the protection of property and to the understanding that much of this protection now takes place at the international level New Governments and the Protection of Foreign Investments under International Law Dr Heba Yehia Abdelmegeed, 2025-03-21 In recent years there has been a tension in international arbitration between legal stability and political change This tension increases significantly when new governments face pressure to enact economic reforms that redress the perceived shortcomings of their predecessors In doing so new governments may have to renegotiate concession contracts terminate monopolies and re nationalise state assets that have been illegitimately transferred into private hands However when foreign investments are affected foreign investors may claim that judicial administrative or legislative measures have violated the core principles of international investment law under investment treaties Indeed foreign investors have previously raised claims against host states in relation to the implementation of treaty obligations Such claims raise the question of how arbitral tribunals should address the tension between legal stability and political change The primary aim of this book is to effectively understand how international law deals with the tension between legal stability and political change Specifically this book seeks to address the vagueness that surrounds determinations on the international liability of new governments in relation to foreign investments under international law Thus the scope of the book covers three main areas of international law 1 the law of state immunity 2 the law of state responsibility and 3 international investment law which is a sub field of international law that integrates both public and private international law

International Protection of Investments August Reinisch, Christoph Schreuer, 2020-07-16 This book outlines the protection standards typically contained in international investment agreements as they are actually applied and interpreted by investment tribunals It thus provides a basis for analysis criticism and stocktaking of the existing system of investment arbitration It covers all main protection standards such as expropriation fair and equitable treatment full protection and security the non discrimination standards of national treatment and MFN the prohibition of unreasonable and discriminatory measures umbrella clauses and transfer guarantees These standards are covered in separate chapters providing an overview of textual variations explaining the origin of the standards and analysing the main conceptual issues as developed by investment tribunals Relevant cases with quotations that illustrate how tribunals have relied upon the standards are presented in depth An extensive bibliography guides the reader to more specific aspects of each investment standard permitting the book's use as a commentary of the main investment protection standards

Regulatory Freedom and Indirect Expropriation in Investment Arbitration Aniruddha Rajput, 2018-12-20 Many investment arbitration cases involve a challenge to a regulatory measure of a host state on the basis of indirect expropriation The practice of arbitral tribunals is diverse and unsettled In recent years States have been trying to clarify the relationship between regulatory freedom also known as police powers and indirect expropriation by revising provisions on indirect expropriation in their investment treaties This book provides the first focused analysis of indirect expropriation and regulatory freedom drawing on a broad range of the jurisprudence of investment tribunals The nature of regulatory freedom in international law has been explained on the bases of jurisprudence of international courts and tribunals such as the International Court of Justice ICJ Permanent Court of International Justice PCIJ dispute resolution bodies of the World Trade Organisation WTO European Court of Human Rights While showing how cases involving standoff between regulatory freedom and indirect expropriation can be resolved in practice the book goes on to present a conceptual framework for interpreting the nuances of this relationship The book provides a detailed responses to the following complex questions To what extent do states retain regulatory freedom after entering into investment treaties What is the scope of regulatory freedom in general public international law What are the elements of regulatory freedom and standard of review How to draw a dividing line between regulatory freedom and indirect expropriation Whether the sole effects doctrine or the police powers is the appropriate method for distinguishing between regulatory freedom and indirect expropriation While addressing these questions the author analyses different theoretical approaches that reflect upon the relationship between regulatory freedom and indirect expropriation and how far they assist in understanding these potentially overlapping concepts their relationship with each other and the method for distinguishing between them Given the dense network of around three thousand bilateral investment treaties BITs that impose an obligation to protect foreign investments in a State this book will help practitioners identify through analysis of cases from diverse fields how a situation may be categorized either as regulatory freedom or as indirect expropriation The analysis will also be of value to government officials and lawyers involved in negotiating and re negotiating investment treaties and to arbitrators who have to decide these issues Scholars will welcome the book s keen insight into the contentious relationship between a customary international law norm and a treaty norm

International Investment Law and the Right to Regulate Lone Wandahl Mouyal, 2016-03-10 The book considers the ways in which the international investment law regime intersects with the human rights regime and the potential for clashes between the two legal orders Within the human rights regime states may be obligated to regulate including a duty to adopt regulation aiming at improving social standards and conditions of living for their population Yet states are increasingly confronted with the consequences of such regulation in investment disputes where investors seek to challenge regulatory interferences for example in expropriation claims Regulatory measures may for instance interfere with the investment by imposing conditions on investors or negatively affecting the value of the investment As a consequence investors increasingly seek to challenge regulatory measures in international investment arbitration on the basis of a bilateral investment treaty This book sets out the nature and the scope of the right to regulate in current international investment law The book examines bilateral investment treaties and ICSID arbitrations looking at the indicative parameters that are granted weight in practice in expropriation claims delimiting compensable from non compensable regulation The book places the potential clash between the right to regulate and international investment law within a theoretical framework which describes the stability flexibility dilemma currently inherent within international law Lone Wandahl Mouyal goes on to set out methods which could be employed by both BIT negotiators and adjudicators of investment disputes allowing states to exercise their right to regulate while at the same time providing investors with legal certainty The book serves as a valuable tool an added perspective for academics as well as for practitioners dealing with aspects of international investment law
