Stratton, 2016-12-01 Even as Stephen Graham Jones generates a dizzying range of brilliant fiction his work remains strikingly absent from scholarly conversations about Native and western American literature owing in part to his unapologetic embrace of popular genres such as horror and science fiction Steeped in dense narrative references literary and historical allusions and experimental postmodern stylings his fiction informs a broad array of literary and popular conversations The Fictions of Stephen Graham Jones is the first collection of scholarship on Jones's ever expanding oeuvre The diverse methodologies that inform these essays from

Native American critical theory to poststructuralism and gothic noirism illuminate the unique complexity of Jones's narrative worlds while positioning his works within broader conversations in literary studies and popular culture Jones challenges at every turn the notions of what constitutes Native American literature and what it means to be a Native American writer

Contributing editor Billy J Stratton foregrounds these heavily contested questions and their ongoing relevance to readers and critics alike Retold Stories, Untold Histories Joanna Ziarkowska, 2014-07-18 Retold Stories Untold Histories concentrates on how challenging questions concerning the nature of historical representation the formation of national ethnic identities and creative agendas are addressed in the diverse and inspiring writings of Maxine Hong Kingston and Leslie Marmon Silko The rationale behind juxtaposing two writers coming from diverse cultural contexts originates in the fact that both Kingston and Silko share the experience of historical and cultural marginalization and more importantly devise similar methods of rendering it in creative writing Writing from the perspective of two distinct marginalized groups Kingston and Silko share the view that the official version of national history may be seen as a narrative of misrepresentation and the exclusion of people who either greatly contributed to the building of the country or occupied the territory of the present United States long before its creation In their texts both writers engage in a polemic against a history that using its legitimizing power as a scientific discipline produces and perpetuates stereotypical images of Chinese and Native Americans and more importantly eliminates the two groups from the process of constructing the national narratives of origins that monitor and control the borders of what constitutes American identity Despite apparent differences in cultural and historical contexts Kingston and Silko share an enthusiasm for employing unconventional tools and sources for offering creative reconstructions of a past which had been silenced or repressed
