

The Political Economy of Reforming Agricultural Support Policies

Rob Vos, Will Martin, and Danielle Resnick

3.1 Introduction

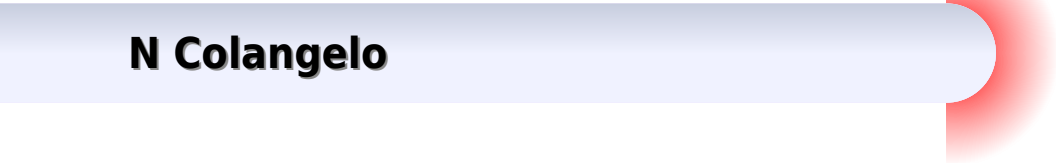

In both developed and developing countries, agricultural support policies provide enormous transfers of resources to agriculture—about US$817 billion per year worldwide in the 2019–2021 period (OECD 2022).¹ Some agricultural support policies, such as input subsidies, have boosted global food production, particularly of staple crops, thereby reducing hunger and poverty. Yet, there are serious concerns about their impacts on achieving sustainable, healthy, and inclusive food systems. Redirecting or “repurposing” agricultural subsidies toward investments that support both increased production and greater sustainability—such as agricultural research and development (R&D) and rural infrastructure—has the potential for win-win-win gains for people, planet, and prosperity.

This chapter first considers how shifts in agricultural support would affect global efforts to promote healthy, inclusive, and sustainable food system transformation. Since such reforms are contingent on political economy considerations, the chapter subsequently presents a framework for analyzing how interests, institutions, ideas and information, and policy characteristics intersect to facilitate or stymie reform efforts. Case studies of attempted reforms from different regions are presented that highlight the relevance of the framework. The chapter concludes by summarizing some potentially enabling political economy conditions for repurposing agricultural support policies.

¹ This chapter draws on material that was included in IFPRI (2022: Ch. 2). It is an abridged version of a longer paper prepared for the Food System Economic Commission (see Vos, Martin, and Resnick 2022). The authors are grateful to Jikun Huang, Bharat Ramaswami, and Johan Swinnen for their inputs into the case study material presented in this chapter. The authors are further grateful for research funding received from the EAT Foundation and the OneCGLAR research initiative “Rethinking Food Markets and Value Chains for Inclusion and Sustainability.”

Of Agricultural Trade And Policy Hans J Michelmann, Jack C Stabler, Gary Storey, 2019-07-11 This book presents a descriptive analysis of the political economy of the European Community the U S and Canada It describes the structural changes and the crises in agriculture and focuses on impact of GATT on agricultural policy and trade in the post Second World War era Technical Barriers To Agricultural Trade Jimmye Hillman, 2019-06-21 Professor Hillman s Technical Barriers to Agricultural Trade is both timely and important It is timely because the GATT negotiations are proceeding slowly in the agricultural arena partly due to a lack of agreement on technical barriers to agricultural trade The book is important since it highlights many of the nontariff barriers which exist and concludes that they are significant impediments to international agricultural trade Governing Global Trade Theodore H. Cohn, 2017-05-15 Cohn s topic of global trade is of enormous and proliferating interest He provides a good background from 1945 to the present and on core contemporary themes such as civil society participation and the domesticisation of the trade agenda Whilst there is a wealth of literature on policy oriented aspects such as negotiating rounds there are few that provide the careful comprehensive historical overview that this work offers and none that do so with reference to international institutions such as the G7 Quad OECD and UNCTAD as well as the WTO in global trade governance This seminal work has been awarded the British Columbia Political Science Association Weller Prize for 2003 Cohn s political science background will appeal directly to a university audience and a broader public policy market It is also suitable for those interested in trade in the cognates of economics and law This work s theoretical framework embraces and synthesises the major approaches in the field of international relations and will be appropriate for the dominant schools of realists and liberal institutionalists alike It could therefore be apt for courses on international relations theory or international political economy taught in a theoretical mode This book reinforces and broadens the focus of all previous works in The G8 and Global Governance series Agriculture in the GATT Joachim

Zietz, Alberto Valdés, 1988 Agriculture in the GATT an overview Criteria for evaluating trade reform proposals The theoretical consequences of changing certain GATT provisions Outline of a trade reform package Agricultural Trade Grace Skogstad, Andrew Fenton Cooper, 1990 Following an analysis of international negotiations this document examines the domestic political context which shapes the formulations of agricultural policy The contributors to this volume analyze the roots of agricultural policies and probe the sources of domestic conflicts and international tensions Improving Trade Policy Reviews in the World Trade Organization Donald B. Keesing, 1998 The Trade Policy Review Mechanism is part of the World Trade Organization Its purpose is to strengthen observance of WTO commitments and promote trade liberalization by providing all member countries with objective information about the trade policies and practices of each member individually and by establishing a forum within which members can question one another's policies and practices in a nonconfrontational manner Since the TPRM was established in 1989 as one of the first fruits of the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations some 80 trade policy reviews have been completed covering nearly 60 countries In light of eight years of experience with the process it is fair to ask whether the TPRM is meeting the goals set for it at its inception Are the reviews sufficiently probing and analytical to provide information of real value Do they cover all relevant aspects of members trade Are they unbiased and objective Does the WTO devote sufficient resources to the task of conducting the reviews and to disseminating the information that they generate Is the potential value of this information to those outside the trade negotiations process being realized This text seeks to answer these questions and others
