these rhetorical descriptions recaptures the Byzantine perception and expectations and at the same time reveals the cognitive processes triggered by the Great Church. The central aesthetic feature that emerges from sixth century ekphrasis of Hagia Sophia is that of light. Light is described as the decisive element in the experience of the sacred space and light is simultaneously associated with the notion of wisdom. It is argued that the concepts of light and wisdom are interwoven programmatic elements that underlie the unique architecture and non figurative decoration of Hagia Sophia. A similar concern for the phenomenon of light and its epistemological dimension is reflected in other contemporary monuments testifying to the pervasiveness of these aesthetic values in early Byzantium.

The Passion of Perpetua and Felicitas in Late Antiquity, 2021-03-10 This volume gathers all available evidence for the martyrdoms of Perpetua and Felicitas two Christian women who became in the centuries after their deaths in 203 CE revered throughout the Roman world. Whereas they are now known primarily through a popular third century account numerous lesser known texts attest to the profound place they held in the lives of Christians in late antiquity. This book brings together narratives in their original languages with accompanying English translations including many related entries from calendars martyrologies sacramentaries and chronicles as well as artistic representations and inscriptions. As a whole the collection offers readers a robust view of the veneration of Perpetua and Felicitas over the course of six centuries examining the diverse ways that a third century Latin tradition was appreciated appropriated and transformed as it circulated throughout the late antique world.

The Bishop's Palace Maureen C. Miller, 2018-09-05 This lavishly illustrated book looks at the art and architecture of episcopal palaces as expressions of power and ideology. Tracing the history of the bishop's residence in the urban centers of northern Italy over the Middle Ages Maureen C. Miller asks why this once rudimentary and highly fortified structure called a domus became a complex and elegant palace palatium by the late twelfth century. Miller argues that the change reflects both the emergence of a distinct clerical culture and the attempts of bishops to maintain authority in public life. She relates both to the Gregorian reform movement which set new standards for clerical deportment and at the same time undercut episcopal claims to secular power. As bishops lost temporal authority in their cities to emerging communal governments they compensated architecturally and competed with the communes for visual and spatial dominance in the urban center. This rivalry left indelible marks on the layout and character of Italian cities. Moreover Miller contends this struggle for power had highly significant but mixed results for western Christianity. On the one hand as bishops lost direct governing authority in their cities they devised ways to retain status influence and power through cultural practices. This response to loss was highly creative. On the other hand their loss of secular control led bishops to emphasize their spiritual powers and to use them to obtain temporal ends. The coercive use of spiritual authority contributed to the emergence of a persecuting society in the central Middle Ages.
