Siege Of Reading:

The Siege of Reading M. C. Barrès-Baker, 2004 In April 1643 a Parliamentary army commanded by the Earl of Essex set out to besiege the Royalist stronghold of Reading as a preliminary to attacking Charles I's capital of Oxford. Although the army succeeded in taking Reading a combination of inadequate supplies, poor weather, epidemic disease and Royalist raids prevented the hoped-for advance on Oxford and eventually led to the virtual disintegration of what its commander described as the bravest Army in Christendom. Using contemporary accounts by eyewitnesses and Parliamentary and Royalist journalists wherever possible, this book tells the story of the failure of the Earl of Essex's 1643 spring offensive, concentrating in particular on a day-by-day account of the 12-day siege of Reading, now largely forgotten but on which the eye of the whole kingdom was fixed in late April 1643. Malcolm Barres Baker was born in London and educated at Dr Challoner's Grammar School, Amersham, Wadham College, Oxford, and King's College, London. After spells as a teacher and proofreader, he now works for a museum in West London. Although he has written historical articles for several magazines, produced a number of pamphlets on places in the London Borough of Brent, and contributed a small box on the Special Operations Executive to a guidebook to Albania, this is his first book. He has been interested in military history since childhood and in the English Civil War since studying it for A Level between 1974 and 1976. Siege! Tony Driver, 1990-01-01 The History and Antiquities, Ancient and Modern, of the Borough of Reading John Man, 1816 Twenty-Two Turbulent Years 1639 - 1661 David C. The Octocentenary of Reading Abbey, A.D. 1121-A.D. 1921 Jamieson Boyd Hurry, 1911 Reading Abbey Jamieson Boyd Hurry, 1901 Participatory reading in late-medieval England Heather Blatt, 2018-05-11 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY-NC-ND open access license. This book traces affinities between digital and medieval media, exploring how reading functioned as a nexus for concerns about increasing literacy, audiences, agency, literary culture, and media formats from the late fourteenth to the early sixteenth centuries. Drawing on a wide range of texts, from well-known poems of Chaucer and Lydgate to wall texts, banqueting poems, and devotional works written by and for women, Participatory reading argues that making readers work offered writers ways to shape their reputations and the futures of their productions. At the same time, the interactive reading practices they promoted enabled audiences to contribute to and contest writers' burgeoning authority, making books and reading work for everyone.

Historical Tales: Reading courses and helps Charles Morris, 1908 Reading Eustathios of Thessalonike Filippomaria Pontani, Vasileios Katsaros, Vasileios Sarris, 2017-02-20 Despite the relevance of Eustathios to both Classical and Byzantine studies, no monograph and no collective volume in English has yet been devoted to his figure. This book attempts to fill in this gap by addressing the various facets of his output, above all his commentaries on Homer, Dionysius the Periegete,

Pindar and the Iambic Canon on the Pentecost but also his historiographical work his speeches and his theological production receive due attention The book also tackles several aspects of Eustathios style proverbs allusions etc and the meaning of his work in the context of his historical moment Addressed at specialists but also at graduate students with an interest in the reception of Classical antiquity and in Byzantine civilisation the volume gathers papers by leading scholars from various countries and it opens up new paths of research in several areas of philology and history above all by interweaving and juxtaposing Eustathios dimension as an Homerist and an immensely learned classical scholar with his capacities as an orator a highly praised teacher a rhetorically refined writer of Greek prose an historian of his own turbulent times and an archbishop who had to fulfil his everyday duties
