What Christians Believe Anna Wierzbicka, 2019-02-28 Many people today both Christians and non Christians are confused about or unaware of the essentials of Christian faith In this book Anna Wierzbicka takes a radically new approach to the task of communicating what Christians believe to the widest possible audience The Story of God and People the heart of the book sets out the core tenets of Christian faith in narrative form using simple language that is accessible to anyone even those with no familiarity with Christianity or Christian vocabulary The Story is not only simple but also universal though written in English it is not phrased in full English English as we know it today shaped by history culture and tradition but in Minimal English Minimal English contains only those 400 or so English words that can be translated into any other language essentially it corresponds to the shared core of all languages In the introduction to the book Wierzbicka explains Minimal English and minimal languages in general and in The Story of God and People that follows she demonstrates the effectiveness of Minimal English as a tool for global understanding At the same time the use of Minimal English allows her not only to retell the Christian story in a strikingly new way but also to rethink its meaning bringing into relief its internal cohesion logic and beauty

Adjective Intensification - Learner's versus Native Speakers Gunter R. Lorenz, 2024-08-26 This volume represents one of the first full length studies carried out on material from the International Corpus of Learner English ICLE supplemented by data from younger learners and native speakers It addresses three main goals a the implementation of a developmental corpus methodology The study explores four corpora of argumentative writing two sampled from advanced learners of different ages and two from corresponding native speakers of English This way the respective linguistic maturation in native and non native writing can be traced with more explanatory power than could be yielded by a mere learner native speaker contrast b a functional account of adjective intensification in present day written English Intensification is a singularly dynamic and innovative lexico grammatical class Despite their obvious limitations small text type controlled corpora such as the ones used here make it feasible to examine this whole functional paradigm and identify the conceptual mechanisms of its continual innovation and semantic change c the exploration of native vs non native usage and the notion of idiomaticity The main differences between native English usage and that of advanced learners rest not so much on grammatical structure but on the rather elusive quality of idiomaticity In the limited domain of intensification this notion is explored both qualitatively and arithmetically with the aim of learning more about what it takes to use English idiomatically

Autonomy and Independence in Language Learning Phil Benson, Peter Voller, 2014-06-06 The topics of autonomy and independence play an increasingly important role in language education They raise issues such as learners responsibility for their own learning and their right to determine the direction of their own learning the skills which can be learned and applied in self directed learning and capacity for independent learning and the extents to which this can be suppressed by institutional education This volume offers new insights into the principles of autonomy and independence and the practices associated with them focusing on the area of EFL teaching The editors introduction provides the context and outlines the main issues involved in autonomy and independence Later chapters discuss the social and political implications of autonomy and independence and their effects on educational structures The consequences for the design of learner centred materials and methods is discussed together with an exploration of the practical ways of implementing autonomy and independence in language teaching and learning Each section of the book opens with an introduction to give structure to the development of ideas and themes with synopses to highlight salient features in the text and help build upon the material of previous chapters
