Looking Back and Thinking Forward Lillian Weber, 1997 This book is a forward looking rather than retrospective collection of the influential writings of Lillian Weber These essays many of which are being published here for the first time represent the mature thinking of a progressive educator who after 20 years of teaching young children initiated dramatic changes in the public schools of New York City This important text reclaims the importance of teachers being seen by themselves and by others as intelligent capable central and committed to children s growth confronts the issue of equity for minority students and shows how it can be interpreted in the approach both to curriculum and to the school s role in the community probes the meaning of educating all children and of what education should be in a democracy looks at the school teachers parents and community as elements of the ecology of the child s educative experience and offers an original approach to the question of morality in education the erosion of democratic spirit and practice in schools and in the nation as a whole Meier and Gasoi candidly reflect on the successes missteps and challenges they experienced working in democratically governed schools demonstrating that it is possible to provide an enriched education to all students not just the privileged few Arguing that public education and democracy are inextricably bound and pushing against the tide of privatization These Schools Belong to You and Me is a rousing call to both save and improve public schools to ensure that all students are empowered to help shape our future democracy

In Search of Wholeness J. Irvine, 2002-05-03. In Search of Wholeness: African American Teachers and their Culturally Specific Classroom Practices is a theoretical and practice-oriented treatment of how culture and race influence African American teachers. This collection of essays edited by Jacqueline Jordan Irvine assumes that teachers cannot become fully functional persons and competent professionals if their cultural selves remain denied, hidden, and unexplored. Part one reviews the literature related to teachers' race and culture. Part two includes research studies about teachers confronting issues of culture and race in their personal and professional lives. The final chapter focuses on the responses of three of the teachers whose stories are portrayed in the book. In addition to the compelling case studies, other topics explored include multicultural professional development for African American teachers, African American teachers' perceptions of their professional roles and practices, a comparison of effective black and white teachers of African American students, the development of teacher efficacy of an African American middle school teacher, the professional development journey of an effective African American elementary school teacher, seizing hope through culturally responsive praxis, collective stories on culturally specific pedagogy. In Search of Wholeness is an indispensable and groundbreaking collection that administrators, students, and educators of all ages will not want to be without.

Making Space for Active Learning Anne C. Martin, Ellen Schwartz, 2015-04-28. This powerful collection will inspire new and veteran teachers to make space for children's interests for teaching as relational and intellectual work and for new insights and ideas. The authors introduce the Prospect Center's Descriptive Review of Practice, a collaborative inquiry process that provides an opportunity for teachers to examine their practice and gain new perspectives from other participants. The contributors to this volume respond to each child's modes of thinking as they develop curriculum or find wiggle room in curricula; they are given. By demonstrating how it is possible to pursue careful knowledge of craft, this book offers ways of teaching that allow for continuing growth and change. Book Features: An inquiry methodology that assists teachers to reflect on the classroom and develop curriculum that responds to children's interests and needs. Specific examples of a variety of sources teachers can draw on and think about to improve practice. A method of data collection that can inform practice while allowing for the unevenness, messiness, and essential humanness of teaching and learning. Making

Space for Active Learning is a collection that stands alone and gets to the heart of what we mean by learning and teaching. Each contribution reminded me of how much I miss being in the classroom and how much we're missing in current so-called school reform discourse. Keep this book handy. A chapter at a time will restore some needed sanity about what's important.

Deborah Meier, author and education activist. This book is a moving and powerful collection of teachers' work that holds the possibility of inspiring and changing new teachers' practice.

Kathy Schultz, Dean and Professor, School of Education, Mills College. This book will add significantly to the expanding and important literature about The Prospect Processes, which were developed over many years at the Prospect School and Center in Vermont. The chapters, all by experienced educators, profit from the back and forth between inquiry and stories of classroom life, each informing the other.

Arthur James Wells, 1999. Those Who Dared. Carl Glickman, 2009. For decades, practically every major initiative in American education, from top-down standards to the testing movement, has moved decision-making farther away from the school. Fighting against this trend throughout their careers, Deborah Meier, John Goodlad, James Comer, Ted Sizer, and Henry Levin have worked to give our schools back the ability to educate students in the broadest and richest traditions of activity, inquiry, and problem-solving. Now these visionary educators have joined together to share personal stories of the challenges and triumphs they faced and their ideas of what education can and must be for every student.

Serving as an inspirational call to action for those seeking to be more involved in the urgent and continuing efforts to restore America's public schools, this book brings together the experiences and insights of greatly influential and progressive educational leaders of the past half century, and they are still working today. Ranges from highly personal to imminently practical to passionately political, with each writer offering a unique perspective on what it takes to sustain major school change. Recounts the many instances when the authors thought beyond the conventional boundaries of educational practice to find innovative solutions in a number of critical areas, including developing more effective curriculum and assessment, expanding the benefits of gifted education to every child, strengthening school-community partnerships, and addressing the specific needs of small schools and learning communities.

Through rituals and practices that honor nature's rhythms, the contributors explore how Ifá guides us towards sustainable coexistence with our environment, recognizing that our well-being is intricately linked to the health of the planet.

The contributors also show how in the realm of environmental stewardship If offers a holistic worldview that recognizes the interconnectedness of all life forms This book offers discussions on environmentalism gender and politics that connect across the bounds of time through the history mythology and lived realities of the tradition As an ancient wisdom tradition that has enriched West African cultures If offers a roadmap for modern civilization to charter new paths for humanity and the challenges that we face
