Adapting to climate change Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environmental Audit Committee,2010-03-25 Climate projections show that Britain can expect wetter winters drier summers and a higher likelihood of flash floods heat waves and droughts Yet adaptation to climate change has been given only a fraction of the attention that has gone into reducing greenhouse gases The Government must build awareness and support for the wide ranging and urgent programme of action that is needed to protect people property and prosperity and safeguard the natural environment Adapting infrastructure and homes will be expensive To maintain current levels of flood protection for homes real terms spending on flood defences will need to increase from its current level of around 600 million per annum to around 1 billion in 2035 Estimates in 2009 suggest that by the end of the century around 7 billion may be needed to improve the Thames flood barrier and tidal defences New homes being built now must be designed to cope with the inevitable changes in climate over the next 50 80 years The Government must make adaptation and mitigation more central to the planning system New developments should only be permitted if they are suited to future climates Existing homes will also need to be adapted so that they are comfortable during hotter summers and better protected against the risk of flooding The Government must help to kick start an integrated retro fitting programme that covers adaptation water efficiency and energy efficiency Green infrastructure such as water storage greater tree cover and more open green spaces must also be promoted Culture, Work and

Psychology Pedro F. Bendassolli, 2019-04-01 This book arises from the observation that mainstream psychology especially work and organisational psychology WOP suffers from critical limitations in its attempts to deal with the complexities of work as a cultural phenomenon We can only mention a few examples here In the WOP field especially in Anglo Saxon tradition work experiences are seen through the lenses of traditional behavioural approaches whereas culture is seen as a software of the mind to use a popular definition found in this field based on cross cultural mainstream psychology Competences to take another example are thought of as something that do or do not people have inside them Suffering like stress a common work based problem of our times is considered to be dependent on a person's personality perceptions or as a set of behaviours triggered by facing an objective environment Even meaning making process can be found to be defined from a WOP mainstream point of view meanings are social cognitions shared by people by means of unidirectional socialisation processes Therefore the goal of this book is to deliver to the reader a new and challenging theoretical and methodological tool box inspired by insights developed from a broad cultural psychological perspective Its focus is on the consideration of work and organisations based on core concepts developed inside cultural psychology Therefore it is designed to discuss potential extensions of these concepts to work psychology What Does Somebody Have to Do to Get a Job Around Here?

global rise of neo liberalism of the late 20th and early 21st centuries The rise of neo liberalism is most often analysed through the lenses of theory governmentality and societal structures There has been a tendency for an ysis to become overly abstract with the subjective experiences of the social actors missing dimensions in the literature This book draws on more than 20 years of international research that has focused on the subjective experiences of people as actors in changing social landscapes These landscapes are differently positioned politically economically and socially in relation to the rise of neo liberalism Comparisons enable the differences in people s experiences to be located explored and explained in relation to different soc economic landscapes thus throwing into relief the effects of neo liberal policies where they are found My approach is to create an extended dialogue between ideas and evidence starting close to home and then extending to speci c international comparisons and to wider explorations of the central themes of the book human agency and social responsibility Finally I return to social landscapes of Britain to review the position and potential for social change in societies that exemplify what Sennett has termed Anglo American regimes in contrast to Rhine regimes as exempli ed by Germany
