New Directions For Institutional Research 127 Fall 2005:

Assessing Student Outcomes - Why, Who, What, How? J. Fredericks Volkwein, 2011-11-22 This volume offers administrators and practitioners a summary guide to assessment in higher education from the reasons for undertaking assessment to the delivery of findings. It opens with the questions that precede an effective study and drive research design: To what extent is the study aimed at educational improvement and to what extent is it aimed at external accountability? Are the results expected to demonstrate goal attainment, improvement, comparison to others, meeting standards, cost effective investment? What is the population from whom assessment data are being collected? Are we measuring the knowledge and skills of individuals and making decisions about their remediation, certification or development? Or are we sampling from particular groups of students and comparing them to each other or perhaps to themselves over time? The core of the volume is devoted to the objects of assessment: basic skills, general education, knowledge attainment in the major, personal growth, attitudes and satisfaction, and alumni outcomes, keeping in mind both cognitive and noncognitive measures. One chapter describes common obstacles to effective assessment; others describe conceptual models, research methods and data collection strategies and instruments. The concluding chapter underscores the importance of communicating research results effectively. This is a special volume of the Jossey-Bass higher education quarterly report series New Directions for Institutional Research. Always timely and comprehensive, New Directions for Institutional Research provides planners and administrators in all types of academic institutions with guidelines in such areas as resource coordination, information analysis, program evaluation and institutional management. Cases on Institutional Research Systems Burley, Hansel, 2011-10-31 Institutional research (IR) is a growing applied and interdisciplinary area that attracts people from a variety of fields including computer programmers, statisticians and administrators and faculty from every discipline to work in archiving, analyzing and reporting on all aspects of higher education information systems. Cases on Institutional Research Systems is a reference book for institutional research, appealing to novice and expert IR professionals and the administrators and policymakers that rely on their data. By presenting a variety of institutional perspectives, the book depicts the challenges and solutions to those in higher education administration and state, federal and even international accreditation. Using Data-Informed Decision Making to Improve Student Affairs Practice Kathleen M. Goodman, Darnell Cole, 2017-09-28 Is the data available on your college campus fully utilized? Analyzing data does not have to be a complex process, but there can be obstacles to putting data to good use: overworked staff or understaffed departments, silos that prevent crossing institutional boundaries, lack of research training or simply being overwhelmed by the possibilities. Addressing these obstacles, this volume presents pragmatic ideas for implementing data-informed decision making to improve student affairs practice. It first illustrates how to easily analyze quantitative data and read assessment reports, demonstrating that advanced research knowledge is not necessary to make meaning of survey findings. It then provides suggestions for utilizing findings.

from large data sets typically available on campus and gives practical guidance for making sense of and using quantitative data to inform practice Also included is how to use data to understand the experiences of non dominant populations on campus which is especially relevant given the diversity of today s college students Several chapters speak directly to using data to understand marginalized groups based on race religion and sexual orientation while others focus on using data to understand campus diversity experiences This is the 159th volume of this Jossey Bass higher education quarterly series An indispensable resource for vice presidents of student affairs deans of students student counselors and other student services professionals New Directions for Student Services offers guidelines and programs for aiding students in their total development emotional social physical and intellectual The Handbook of Institutional Research Richard D.

Understanding the Working College Student Laura W. Perna,2023-07-14 How appropriate for today and for the future are the policies and practices of higher education that largely assume a norm of traditional age students with minimal on campus or no work commitments Despite the fact that work is a fundamental part of life for nearly half of all undergraduate students with a substantial number of traditional dependent undergraduates in employment and working independent undergraduates averaging 34 5 hours per week little attention has been given to how working influences the integration and engagement experiences of students who work especially those who work full time or how the benefits and costs of working differ between traditional age students and adult students The high and increasing prevalence and intensity of working among both dependent and independent students raises a number of important questions for public policymakers college administrators faculty academic advisors student services and financial aid staff and institutional and educational researchers including Why do so many college students work so many hours What are the characteristics of undergraduates who work What are the implications of working for students educational experiences and outcomes And how can public and institutional policymakers promote the educational success of undergraduate students who work This book offers the most complete and comprehensive conceptualization of the working college student available It provides a multi faceted picture of the characteristics experiences and challenges of working college students and a more complete understanding of the heterogeneity underlying the label undergraduates who work and the implications of working for undergraduate students educational experiences and outcomes The volume stresses the importance of recognizing the value and contribution of adult learners to higher education and takes issue with the appropriateness of the term non traditional itself both because of the prevalence of this group and because it allows higher education institutions to avoid considering changes that will meet the needs of this population including changes in course offerings course scheduling financial aid and pedagogy Research in the College Context Frances K. Stage, Kathleen Manning, 2015-08-20 Research in the College Context 2nd Edition provides faculty students practitioners and researchers in the college environment with a manual of diverse approaches and methods for researching higher education and college students The text offers the reader a variety of qualitative and quantitative research tools including interviewing surveys mixed methods focus groups visual methods participatory action research policy analysis document analysis and historical methods secondary data analysis and use of large national data sets This revised edition provides readers with current and innovative methodological tools needed to research the complex issues facing higher education today Each technique is thoroughly presented with accompanying examples advice for designing research projects and tips for data collection analysis and dissemination of results Clearly organized and accessible this volume is the essential guide for experienced and novice researchers experimental and quasi experimental designs looking for objective truths Educational researchers have recently begun to use large scale studies to understand what really works from developing interventions to validation studies of the intervention and then to efficacy studies and the final scale up for large implementation of an intervention Moreover modeling student learning developmentally taking into account cohort factors issues of socioeconomics local political context and the presence or absence of interventions requires the use of large data sets wherein these variables can be sampled adequately and inferences made Inroads in quantitative methods have been made in the psychometric and sociometric literatures but these methods are not yet common knowledge in the mathematics education community In fact currently there is no volume devoted to discussion of issues related to large scale studies and to report findings from them This volume is unique as it directly discusses methodological issue in large scale studies and reports empirical data from large scale studies Theory
