Reaching Out In Love Other Stories Tol:

A Most Ambiguous Sunday and Other Stories Jung Young-moon, 2013-09-26 Considered an eccentric in the traditional Korean literary world Jung Young moon s short stories have nonetheless won numerous readers both in Korea and abroad most often drawing comparisons to Kafka Adopting strange warped unstable characters and drawing heavily on the literature of the absurd Jung s stories nonetheless do not wallow in darkness despair or negativity Instead we find a world in which the bizarre and terrifying are often put to comic use even in direst of situations and point toward a sort of redemption to be found precisely in the weirdest and most unsettling parts of life What the World Might Look Like Susie

O'Brien, 2024-05-14 The idea of resilience is everywhere these days offering a framework for thriving in volatile times Dominant resilience stories share an attachment to a mythologized past thought to hold clues for navigating a future that is understood to be full of danger These stories also uphold values of settler colonialism and white supremacy What the World Might Look Like examines the way resilience thinking has come to dominate the settler colonial imagination and explores alternative approaches to resilience writing that instead offer decolonial models of thought The book traces settler colonial resilience stories to the rise of resilience science in the 1970s and 1980s illustrating how the discipline supports the projects of white supremacy and colonialism Working to unravel the blanket of common sense that shrouds the idea of resilience the book is equally cautious of settler colonial antiresilience stories that invoke the idea of death as an antidote to unbearable life Susie O'Brien argues that although the dominant narratives of resilience are problematic resilience itself is neither inherently good nor inherently bad Appreciating the significance of resilience stories requires asking what worlds and what communities they are meant to preserve Looking at the fiction of Alexis Wright David Chariandy and Leanne Betasamosake Simpson O'Brien points to the potential of Black and Indigenous thinking around resilience to figure decolonial possibilities for planetary flourishing Exposing the complexities and limits of resilience What the World Might Look Like questions the concept of resilience highlighting how Black and Indigenous novelists can offer different decolonial ways of thinking about and with resilience to imagine things otherwise Positive Couple Therapy Jefferson A. After the success of her collection The Woman Who Thought She Was a Planet Vandana Singh returns to the short story in Ambiguity Machines. Her deep humanism interplays with her scientific background in stories that consider and celebrate this world and others with characters who try to make sense of the people they meet, what they see, and the challenges they face. An eleventh-century poet wakes to find he is an artificially intelligent companion on a starship. A woman of no account has the ability to look into the past. And in Requiem, a major new novella, a woman goes to Alaska to try and make sense of her aunt's disappearance. Examining the revolutionary potential of speculative fiction, Singh dives deep into the vast strangeness of the universe without and within to explore the ways in which we move through space and time together yet always apart.
