Kamil, Peter B. Mosenthal, P. David Pearson, Rebecca Barr, 2016-11-18 In Volume III as in Volumes I and II the classic topics of reading are included from vocabulary and comprehension to reading instruction in the classroom and in addition each contributor was asked to include a brief history that chronicles the legacies within each of the volume s many topics However on the whole Volume III is not about tradition Rather it explores the verges of reading research between the time Volume II was published in 1991 and the research conducted after this date The editors identified two broad themes as representing the myriad of verges that have emerged since Volumes I and II were published 1 broadening the definition of reading and 2 broadening the reading research program The particulars of these new themes and topics are addressed Literacy for Young Children Priscilla L. Griffith, Sara Ann Beach, Jiening Ruan, Loraine Dunn, 2008-03-07 This research based guidebook offers PreK and kindergarten teachers easy to implement activities to develop oral language phonological and print awareness emergent writing and comprehension skills in diverse classrooms Touch Screen Tablets Touching Children's Lives Joanne Tarasuik, Gabrielle Strouse, Jordy Kaufman, 2018-02-28 Touch screen tablets have greatly expanded the technology accessible to preschoolers toddlers and even infants given that they do not require the fine motor skills required for using traditional computers Many parents and educators wish to make evidence based decisions regarding young children s technology use yet technological advancements continue to occur faster than researchers can keep up with Accordingly despite touch screen tablets entering society more than 5 years ago we are in the infancy of research concerning interactive media and children The topic has gained traction in the past couple of years For example theoretical papers have discussed how interactive media activities differ from physical toys and passive media Christakis 2014 and how educational apps development should utilise the four pillars of learning Hirsh Pasek et al 2015 Yet there has been little experimental research published on young children and touch screen use Children's Early Text Construction Clotilde Pontecorvo, Margherita Orsolini, Barbara Burge, Lauren B. Resnick, 2014-02-04 For decades research on children s literacy has been dominated by questions of how children learn to read Especially among Anglophone scholars cognitive and psycholinguistic research on reading has been the only approach to studying written language education Echoing this debates on methods of teaching children to read have long dominated the educational scene This book presents an alternative view In recent years writing has emerged as a central aspect of becoming literate Research in cognitive psychology has shown that writing is a highly complex activity involving a degree of planning unknown in everyday conversational uses of language At the same time developmental studies have revealed that when young children are asked to write they show a surprisingly sophisticated understanding of the representational constraints of alphabetic writing systems They show this understanding long before they can read conventional writing on their own The rich structure of meanings involved in the word text provided the glue that brought together a group of scholars from several disciplines in an international workshop held in Rome Reflecting the state of the field at the time the majority of the workshop participants were scholars working in languages other than English especially the romance languages Their work mirrors a linguistic and psychological research tradition that Anglophone scholars knew little of until recently This volume provides English language readers with updated versions of the papers presented at the meeting The topics discussed at the workshop are represented in the chapters as follows the relationship between acquisition of language and familiarity with written texts the reciprocal permeability between spoken and written language the initial phases of text construction by children and the educational
