Resonant Rubbish:

Resonant Rubbish John Anatole Brune, 1975-01      Into the Heart of European Poetry John Taylor, 2017-07-05 John Taylor's brilliant new book examines the work of many of the major poets who have deeply marked modern and contemporary European literature. Venturing far and wide from France in which he has lived since the late 1970s, the polyglot writer-critic not only delves into the more widely translated literatures of Italy, Greece, Germany, and Austria but also discovers impressive and overlooked work in Slovenia, Bosnia, Hungary, Finland, Norway, and the Netherlands. In this book that ranges over nearly all of Europe, including Russia. While providing this stimulating and far-ranging critical panorama, Taylor brings to light key themes of European writing: the depth of everyday life, the quest of the thing-in-itself, metaphysical aspiration and anxiety, the dialectics of negativity and affirmation, subjectivity and self-effacement, and uprootedness as a category that is as ontological as it is geographical, historical, political, or cultural. The book pays careful attention to the intersection of writing and history or politics, as several poets featured here have faced the Second World War, the Holocaust, Communism, the fall of Communism, or the war in the former Yugoslavia. Taylor gives the work of renowned, upcoming, and still little-known poets a thorough look, all the while scrutinizing recent translations of their verse. He highlights several poets who are also masters of the prose poem. He includes a few novelists who have fashioned a particularly original kind of poetic prose, that stylistic category that has proved so difficult for critics to define. Into the Heart of European Poetry should be of immediate interest to any reader curious about the aesthetic and philosophical ideas underlying major trends of contemporary European writing. In a day and age when much too little is translated and thus known about foreign literature and when Europeans themselves are pondering the common denominators of their own culture, this book is a Music in Education. Malcolm Carlton, 2014-01-21. First published in 1987. This book is for parents, teachers, and others involved in the education of children. It aims to provide in easily understood language a guide to music in education; it includes some historical detail but is mostly concerned with what actually occurs or ought to occur in the classroom in both primary and secondary schools.      Framing the Holocaust in Polish Aftermath Cinema Matilda Mroz, 2021-02-09. This book offers a unique perspective on contemporary Polish cinema's engagement with histories of Polish violence against their Jewish neighbours during the Holocaust. Moving beyond conventional studies of historical representation on screen, the book considers how cinema reframes the unwanted knowledge of violence in its aftermaths. The book draws on Derridean hauntology, Didi Huberman's confrontations with art images, Levinasian ethics, and anamorphosis to examine cinematic reconfigurations of histories and memories that are vulnerable to evasion and formlessness. Innovative analyses of Birthplace (1992), It Looks Pretty From a Distance (2011), Aftermath (2012), and Ida (2013) explore how their rural filmic landscapes are predicated on the radical exclusion of Jewish neighbours, prompting archaeological processes of exhumation. Arguing that the distressing materiality of decomposition disturbs cinematic composition, the book examines how

Poland's aftermath cinema attempts to recompose itself through form and narrative as it faces Polish complicity in Jewish death

Digital Rubbish Jennifer Gabrys, 2013-04-26 This is a study of the material life of information and its devices of electronic waste in its physical and electronic incarnations a cultural and material mapping of the spaces where electronics in the form of both hardware and information accumulate break down or are stowed away Where other studies have addressed digital technology through a focus on its immateriality or virtual qualities Gabrys traces the material spatial cultural and political infrastructures that enable the emergence and dissolution of these technologies In the course of her book she explores five interrelated spaces where electronics fall apart from Silicon Valley to Nasdaq from containers bound for China to museums and archives that preserve obsolete electronics as cultural artifacts to the landfill as material repository Digital Rubbish A Natural History of Electronics describes the materiality of electronics from a unique perspective examining the multiple forms of waste that electronics create as evidence of the resources labor and imaginaries that are bundled into these machines Ranging across studies of media and technology as well as environments geography and design Jennifer Gabrys draws together the far reaching material and cultural processes that enable the making and breaking of these technologies

Rubbish! William L. Rathje, Cullen Murphy, 2001 It is from the discards of former civilizations that archaeologists have reconstructed most of what we know about the past and it is through their examination of today's garbage that William Rathje and Cullen Murphy inform us of our present Rubbish is their witty and erudite investigation into all aspects of the phenomenon of garbage Rathje and Murphy show what the study of garbage tells us about a population's demographics and buying habits Along the way they dispel the common myths about our garbage crisis about fast food packaging and disposable diapers about biodegradable garbage and the acceleration of the average family's garbage output They also suggest methods for dealing with the garbage we do have

Assembling Culture Tony Bennett, Chris Healy, 2013-10-31 If the social does not exist as a special domain but in Bruno Latour's words as a peculiar movement of re-association and reassembling what implications does this have for how the cultural might best be conceived What new ways of thinking the relations between culture the economy and the social might be developed by pursuing such lines of inquiry And what are the implications for the relations between culture and politics Contributors draw on a range of theoretical perspectives including those associated with Deleuze and Guattari Foucault Law and Haraway in order to focus on the roles of different forms of expertise and knowledge in producing cultural assemblages What expertise is necessary to produce indigenous citizens How does craniometry assemble the head What kinds of knowledge were required to create markets for life insurance These and other questions are pursued in this collection through a challenging array of papers concerned with cultural assemblages as diverse as brands and populations bottled water and mobile television

Waste Matters Sarah Harrison, 2016-08-12 How do those pushed to the margins survive in contemporary cities What role do they play in today's increasingly complex urban ecosystems Faced with stark disparities in human and environmental wellbeing what form might more equitable cities take Waste Matters argues that contemporary literature and film offer an insightful and timely response to these questions through their formal and thematic revaluation of urban waste In their creation of a new urban imaginary which centres on discarded things degraded places and devalued people authors and artists such as Patrick Chamoiseau Chris Abani Dinaw Mengestu Suketu Mehta and Vik Muniz suggest opportunities for an inclusive urban politics that demands systematic analysis Waste Matters assesses the utopian promise and pragmatic limitations of their as yet under examined work in light of today s pressing urban challenges This book will be of great interest to scholars and students of English Literature Postcolonial Studies Urban Studies Environmental Humanities and Film Studies

Flourishing Thought Ruth A. Miller,2020-03-06 Challenging the posthumanist canon that celebrates the preeminence of matter Ruth Miller in Flourishing Thought contends that what nonhuman systems contribute to democracy is thought Drawing on recent feminist theories of nonhuman life and politics Miller shows that reproduction and flourishing are not antithetical to contemplation and sensitivity After demonstrating that processes of life and processes of thought are indistinguishable Miller finds that four menacing accumulations of matter and information global surveillance stored embryos human clones and reproductive trash are politically productive rather than threats to democratic politics As a consequence she questions the usefulness of individual rights such as privacy and dignity contests the value of the rational metaphysics underlying human centered political participation and reevaluates the gender relations that derive from this type of participation Ultimately in place of these human centered structures Miller posits a more meditative mode of democratic engagement Miller s argument has shattering implications for the debates over the proper use and disposal of embryonic tissue alarms about data gathering by the state and corporations and other major ethical social and security issues

Waste William Viney,2014-05-22 Why are people so interested in what they and others throw away This book shows how this interest in what we discard is far from new it is integral to how we make build and describe our lived environment As this wide ranging new study reveals waste has been a polarizing topic for millennia and has been treated as a rich resource by artists writers philosophers and architects Drawing on the works of Giorgio Agamben T S Eliot Jacques Derrida Martin Heidegger James Joyce Bruno Latour and many others Waste A Philosophy of Things investigates the complexities of waste in sculpture literature and architecture It traces a new philosophy of things from the ancient to the modern and will be of interest to those working in cultural and literary studies archaeology architecture and continental philosophy
