Restorative Justice The Empowerment Model:

Restorative Justice Charles K. B. Barton, 2003 Restorative Justice The Empowerment Model presents a powerful challenge to many current accounts of the criminal justice system Charles Barton gives a clear and insightful analysis of current restorative justice philosophy and theory He uses a unifying and overarching principle of empowerment to provide a distinct conceptual framework for restorative justice theory and practice He puts forward a step by step implementation process which includes restorative meeting facilitation complete with seating plans and scripted prompts for mediators keepers and facilitators There will also be two sample role plays in the book and additionally there will be four complete role plays available on our website closer to publication Barton emphasises the importance of each participant in a restorative justice meeting the victims offenders and their supporters as well as professionals such as police social workers and legal advocates Successful programs must consistently and reliably achieve maximally restorative outcomes for all of them Practitioners need always keep this objective in mind Barton s book will strengthen their comprehension and facilitate application of the practical process

Criminal Justice Peter Joyce, 2013 This book assesses the main theories concerned with the causes of crime and provides an account and analysis of the response of the state to crime in England and Wales It is a useful text for students taking courses in criminal justice

Change Agent Church in Black Lives Matter Times Valerie A. Miles-Tribble, 2020-05-29 Volatile social dissonance in America s urban landscape is the backdrop as Valerie A Miles Tribble examines tensions in ecclesiology and public theology focusing on theoethical dilemmas that complicate churches public justice witness as prophetic change agents She attributes churches reticence to confront unjust disparities to conflicting views for example of Black Lives Matter protests as mere politics and disparities in leader and congregant preparation for public justice roles As a practical theologian with experience in organizational leadership Miles Tribble applies adaptive change theory public justice theory and a womanist communitarian perspective engaging Emilie Townes s construct of cultural evil as she presents a model of social reform activism re envisioned as public discipleship She contends that urban churches are urgently needed to embrace active prophetic roles and thus increase public justice witness Black Lives Matter times compel churches to connect faith with public roles as spiritual catalysts of change

A Journey through Forgiveness, 2020-05-18 In the present book scholars and activists from a variety of disciplinary perspectives engage each other around the topic of forgiveness They examine its benefits and costs its motives and its limitations The different voices do not sing in unity but by the end of the book you might conclude that some times of beautiful harmony were heard

Remorse Michael Proeve, Steven Tudor, 2016-04-08 Remorse is a powerful important and yet academically neglected emotion This book one of the very few extended examinations of remorse draws on psychology law and philosophy to present a unique interdisciplinary study of this intriguing emotion The psychological chapters examine the fundamental nature of remorse its interpersonal effects and its relationship with regret guilt and shame A practical focus is also provided in an examination of the place of remorse in psychotherapeutic interventions with criminal offenders The book's jurisprudential chapters explore the problem of how offender remorse is proved in court and the contentious issues concerning the effect that remorse and its absence should have on sentencing criminal offenders The legal and psychological perspectives are then interwoven in a discussion of the role of remorse in restorative justice In Remorse Psychological and Jurisprudential Perspectives Proeve and Tudor bring together insights of neighbouring disciplines to advance our understanding of remorse It will be of interest to theoreticians in psychology law and philosophy and will be of benefit to practising psychologists and lawyers

The Emotional Brain and the Guilty Mind Federica Coppola, 2021-02-11 This book seeks to reframe the normative narrative of the culpable person in American criminal law through a more humanising lens It embraces such a reframed narrative to revise the criteria of the current voluntarist architecture of culpability and to advance a paradigm of punishment that positions social rehabilitation as its core principle The book constructs this narrative by considering behavioural and neuroscientific insights into the functions of emotions and socio environmental factors within moral behaviour in social settings Hence it suggests culpability notions that reflect a more contextualised view of human conduct and argues that such revised notions are better suited to the principle of personal guilt Furthermore it suggests a model of punishment that values the dynamic power of change of individuals and acknowledges the importance of social relationships and positive environments to foster patterns of social re integration Ultimately this book argues that the potential adoption of the proposed models of culpability and punishment which view people through a more comprehensive lens may be a key factor for turning criminal justice into a less punitive more inclusionary and non stigmatising system

Youth and Violent Performativities Ben Arnold Lohmeyer, 2020-06-12 This book challenges the dominant narrative of young people being a uniquely violent group Instead the book critically examines how young people become violent as they enact and resist the available violent performativities in youth It focuses on the experiences of 28 young people in Australia who are subjected to violence who use violence and who resist violence A critical analysis of these young people's messy stories facilitates a reframing of the physical violence routinely attributed to young people as a product of violating systems and structures The author constructs a converging theoretical landscape to re examine youth violence and resistance at the intersection of the sociology of violence and the sociology of youth Drawing on interviews with young Australians the book makes a valuable contribution to contemporary international scholarship on youth and violence while also examining the potential for complicity to violence in youth research and practice In doing so it offers youth scholars and practitioners a framework for reassessing their theoretical frameworks and methods for studying and working with young people in connection with violence

Criminal Justice in Ireland Paul O'Mahony, 2002 Comprehensive overview of the Irish criminal justice system its current problems and its vision for the future Collection of essays by major office holders experienced practitioners leading academics legal scholars sociologists psychologists philosophers and educationalists Strengthening State-led Rural Justice in Bangladesh Dr. Zahidul Islam, 2009-07-01 Economically poor and marginalised rural people do need a justice system which is easily accessible less expensive efficient fair impartial unbiased capable to provide remedies timely and consistent with their values The objectives of introducing State led Rural Justice Systems namely the Village Court system and the Arbitration Council system were to fulfil this need of the rural population in Bangladesh. In other words, the objectives were to provide them with better alternatives to the village shalish that often becomes a space for the powerful village elite to exercise their various types of power. Previous studies show that the State led justice systems have failed to achieve the objectives miserably. The reasons why the state led rural justice systems are yet to become better alternatives to the shalish or why these systems have failed to provide access to justice to more rural justice seekers have become obvious in this book. This book suggests an immediate state intervention in the field of rural justice. Despite some plaguing incapacities, the state led rural justice systems have adequate strengths. A thoughtful and careful intervention to fight the weaknesses and challenges exposed in this study can strengthen the state led rural justice systems to a greater extent.
