Restore Breathing:

Implantable Neuroprostheses for Restoring Function Kevin Kilgore, 2015-02-24 Research and developments in neuroprostheses are providing scientists with the potential to greatly improve the lives of individuals who have lost some function Neuroprostheses can help restore or substitute motor and sensory functions which may have been damaged as a result of injury or disease However these minute implantable sensors also provide scientists with challenges This important new book provides readers with a comprehensive review of neuroprostheses Chapters in part one are concerned with the fundamentals of these devices Part two looks at neuroprostheses for restoring sensory function whilst part three addresses neuroprostheses for restoring motor function The final set of chapters discusses significant considerations concerning these sensors Systematic and comprehensive coverage of neuroprostheses Covers the fundamentals of neuroprostheses their application in restoring sensory and motor function and an analysis of the future trends Keen focus on industry needs in the field of biomaterials

Breathing Edgar Williams, 2021-05-05 Our knowledge of breathing has shaped our social history and philosophical beliefs since prehistory Breathing occupied a spiritual status for the ancients while today it is central to the practice of many forms of meditation like Yoga Over time physicians scientists and engineers have pieced together the intricate biological mechanisms of breathing to devise ever more sophisticated devices to support and maintain breathing indefinitely from iron lungs to the modern ventilator Breathing supplementary oxygen has allowed us to conquer Everest travel to the Moon and dive to ever greater ocean depths We all expect to breathe fresh and clean air but with an increase in air pollution that expectation is no longer being met Today respiratory viruses like COVID 19 are causing disasters both human and economical on a global scale This is the story of breathing a tale relevant to everyone The Lancet ,1864
