Communities of Restoration Thomas Noakes-Duncan, 2017-10-19 By bringing together the insights of ecclesial ethics an approach that emphasizes the distinctive nature of the church as the community that forms its mind and character after its reading of Scripture with the theory and practice of restorative justice a way of conceiving justice making that emerged from the Mennonite Anabaptist tradition this book shows why a theological account of the theory and practice of restorative justice is fruitful for articulating and clarifying the witness of the church especially when faced with conflict or wrongdoing This can help extend the church's imagination as to how it might better become God's community of restoration as it reflects on the ways in which the justice of God is taking shape in its own community How does an ecclesial context shape the theological apprehension and praxis of justice This question orientates the book In particular it asks how in view of its members having been admitted into God's restoring justice in Christ the church might embody in the world this same justice of restoring right relationships While Christian reflection on the nature of justice has tended to favour a judicial and retributive conception of justice it will be argued that the biblical understanding of the justice of God is best understood as a saving liberating and restorative justice It is this restorative conception that ought to guide the community that reads Scripture so that it might be embodied in life

The Analogy of Signs Rory Misiewicz, 2021-02-12 The longstanding debate over how God talk is intelligible gravitates around how we should understand the putative answer by analogy For some contemporary Christian theologians analogy involves an ontological claim about creaturely and divine being i.e. an analogy of being For others it involves a semantic or syntactical structure that legitimates the linguistic performances associated with analogy i.e. a grammatical analogy Still others appeal to faith in God's self disclosure in Jesus Christ i.e. an analogy of faith Rory Misiewicz argues that all of these approaches fall flat in their explanatory efforts He draws upon the work of American philosopher Charles Sanders Peirce to rethink the relation between God and human beings He argues that Christian theologians may view that relation as being established by an analogy of signs both God and human beings are univocally involved in semiosis or sign process and the confirmation of God's semiotic identity is found in the revelation of God in the person of Jesus the incarnate Son of God Therefore ordinary analogical language is intelligible for divine signs are commensurate with human signs

Soil Enzymology in the Recycling of Organic Wastes and Environmental Restoration Carmen Trasar-Cepeda, Teresa Hernández, Carlos García, Carlos Rad, Salvador González-Carcedo, 2011-09-30 Soil enzymes play a fundamental role in many soil processes such as the mineralization of organic matter the synthesis of humic substances the degradation of xenobiotics or the mechanisms involved in the biocontrol of plant pathogens Their direct link with soil microorganisms gives them a key role as biomonitors of the evolution of soil quality or in the monitoring of the application of organic amendments to degraded soils As a consequence of the importance of soil enzymes on soil processes there is an increasing interest in their study as well as in the application of molecular techniques as diagnostic tools

God's Being Towards Fellowship Justin Stratis, 2019-05-30 Justin Stratis explores the meaning of the biblical phrase God is love through an examination of two quintessentially modern Protestant theologians Friedrich Schleiermacher and Karl Barth This book contains both a detailed engagement with Schleiermacher's untranslated lectures on Dialektik and their relation to his more well known work as well as a new assessment of Barth's doctrine of God which both respects his radical innovations and yet places him within the stream of traditional catholic trinitarianism After considering the complexities of theological predication and comparing several classical and contemporary approaches to the implication of love Stratis presents and ultimately commends the distinct approaches of Schleiermacher and Barth for their tendency to treat divine love as a conclusion to the doctrine of God rather than as a conceptual starting point In contrast to many contemporary approaches Stratis concludes with the suggestion that God's love is best conceived as his being toward fellowship rather than as the eminent instance of loving fellowship understood according to human experiences of love
