Pension Reform in Europe Camila Arza,Martin Kohli,2007-08-07 This new book provides a cross country comparative analysis of the key issues shaping the latest pension reforms in Europe political games welfare models and pathways population reactions and observed and expected outcomes Pension reform has been a top policy priority for European governments in the last decade Ageing populations changing labour market patterns and the process of European integration are the irresistible forces pushing for reform throughout the region The Political Economy of Pension Reform evaluates the political forces that make pension reform viable in different national and institutional contexts and the nature of political bargains actors and cleavages surrounding policy change The volume also examines the nature and outcomes of pension reform experiences in Europe searching for a solution to the financial challenge posed by growing pension budgets By addressing the nature of change the pathways of reform and the outcomes of the new pension mix in the region the authors conclude with an analysis of people s perceptions and attitudes towards pension policy and their acceptance or otherwise of different reform options This book will be of interest to students and scholars of international political economy European politics and social policy

A Generation of Change Jacob S. Siegel,1993-02-18 A Generation of Change is an exceptional study of the nation's elderly a population that has undergone profound changes in the years since World War II. As modern medicine extends the average life span and the baby boom generation begins to approach middle age the number of older Americans is expected to more than double in the next century. Currently 75 percent of U.S. health care expenditures go toward the elderly. But as national trends toward early retirement and low birthrate continue an aging American population could face crises in meeting their financial and physical needs. According to Jacob S. Siegel in A Generation of Change astute public planning must be informed by an understanding of the demographic, social and economic characteristics of the older population as it is today and as it will be in the coming years. Siegel employs census and survey data from 1950 through the mid 1980s to describe a population constantly shifting in its ethnic and gender composition, geographic distribution, marital and living arrangements, health, employment and economic status. Surprisingly there is tremendous disparity in the quality of life among the elderly. Although their average poverty rate is below that of the general population there are dramatic levels of poverty among older women who are far more likely than men to live alone or in institutions. As the elderly progress from the young old to the aged old those over 85 sharp differences emerge as income and employment decrease and degrees of chronic illness increase. In addition residential location influences the quality of health care and public assistance available to the elderly an effect that may account for the marked migration of older people to Florida and Arizona. Siegel analyzes the full range of characteristics for this heterogeneous population and through comparisons with other age groups as well as with the elderly of the previous decades portrays the crucial influence of social and economic conditions over the life course on the quality of later life. With our elderly population growing more numerous and long lived accurate information about them is increasingly essential. A Generation of Change will serve as a valuable resource for policymakers seeking more effective solutions in critical areas such as housing, long term health care and the funding of Social Security and retirement programs. A Volume in the Russell Sage Foundation Census Series     Vital & Health Statistics, 1984     Aging and Work Masaharu Kumashiro, 2002-11-14 Improvements in health care and quality of life in recent years have led to a marked aging of the world's population especially in well developed regions. In the near future this problem will spread to developing countries. The growing need to promote the health and function of aging workers presents new challenges as well as new opportunities     Labour Markets in an Ageing Europe Paul Johnson, Klaus F. Zimmermann, 1993-05-13 The population of the European Community will fall by 2% by the year 2025. Between 1960 and 1990 it grew by 17%. This contrast reflects the dramatic growth of the population of pensioners in the total population and also the rapid ageing of the Community's working population. In this volume based on a CEPR conference held in Munich in April 1992 leading economists in the field assess demographic and labour market developments in Western and Eastern Europe. They compare them with developments in the USA and Japan and assess the effects of ageing on European productivity, earnings and human capital formation. Policies to improve the quantity and quality of the labour force are considered including incentives for female labour participation selective immigration policies pronatalist family policies and improved human capital formation
