their relations to modernity were inseparable from the emergence of the post war international imperial order transnational collaboration and crises the aspirations of national groups and collisions between them and the British mandatories This study uniquely combines a history of the internationalization of archaeology and the rise of a new regime of antiquities under the oversight of the League of Nations and its institutions a history of British attitudes to and passion for near eastern antiquity and on the ground colonial policies and mechanisms as well as nationalist claims on the past It points at the centrality of the new mandate system Drawing on an unusually wide range of materials collected in archives in six countries as well as on material and visual evidence this volume weaves together imperial international and national histories and the history of archaeological discovery which it connects to imperial modernity Lithic Technology in the Middle Potomac
