Thinking Medieval Romance Katherine C. Little, Nicola McDonald, 2018-11-10 Medieval romances with their magic fountains brave knights and beautiful maidens have come to stand for the Middle Ages more generally This close connection between the medieval and the romance has had consequences for popular conceptions of the Middle Ages an idealized fantasy of chivalry and hierarchy and also for our understanding of romances as always already archaic part of a half-forgotten past And yet romances were one of the most influential and long-lasting innovations of the medieval period To emphasize their novelty is to see the resources medieval people had for thinking about their contemporary concern and controversies whether social order Jewish-Christian relations the Crusades the connectivity of the Mediterranean women's roles as mothers and how to write a national past This volume takes up the challenge to think romance investigating the various ways that romances imagine reflect and describe the challenges of the medieval world

This is Not a Grail Romance Natalia Petrovskaja, 2023-07-15 This is Not a Grail Romance provides answers to some of the most important questions surrounding the medieval Welsh Arthurian tale Historia Peredur vab Efreuac one of the few surviving medieval Welsh narrative compositions and an important member of the Grail family of medieval European narratives The study demonstrates that Historia Peredur is an original Welsh composition rather than as previous theories have suggested being an adaptation of the twelfth-century French Grail romance The new analysis of the structure of Historia Peredur presented here shows it to be as complex as it has always been thought but also more formal and the result of intentional and intricate design The seeming inconsistencies or oddities in Historia Peredur can be understood by reading it in its medieval Welsh cultural context allowing the modern reader a greater appreciation of both the narrative and the culture that produced it

Renaissance Utopias and the Problem of History Marina Leslie, 1998 Marina Leslie draws on three important early modern utopian texts Thomas More's Utopia Francis Bacon's New Atlantis and Margaret Cavendish's Description of a New

World Called the Blazing World as a means of exploring models for historical transformation and of addressing the relationship of literature and history in contemporary critical practice While the genre of utopian texts is a fertile terrain for historicist readings Leslie demonstrates that utopia provides unstable ground for charting out the relation of literary text to historical context In particular she examines the ways that both Marxist and new historicist critics have taken the literary utopia not simply as one form among many available for reading historically but as a privileged form or methodological paradigm Rather than approach utopia by mapping out a fixed set of formal features or by tracing the development of the genre Leslie elaborates a history of utopia as critical practice Moreover by taking every reading of utopia to be as historically symptomatic as the literary production it assesses her book integrates readings of these three English Renaissance utopias with an analysis of the history and politics of reading utopia Throughout Leslie considers utopia as a fictional enactment of historical process and method In her view these early modern utopian constructions of history relate very closely to and impinge upon the narrative structures of history assumed by critical theory today The Last Empress
