Cruisers Conrad Waters, 2019-11-18 Entering service between 1937 and 1939 the ten British Town class cruisers were the most modern vessels of their type in the Royal Navy when the Second World War began Built in response to large 6 inch gunned cruisers in the US and Japanese Navies and primarily designed for the defence of trade they saw arduous service in a wide range of roles playing a decisive part in victories such as the Battle of the Barents Sea and the destruction of the German Scharnhorst at the North Cape The cost was heavy four of the ships were lost and the other six all survived heavy damage in some cases on more than one occasion In this major study Conrad Waters makes extensive use of archive material to provide a technical evaluation of the Town class design and its subsequent performance He outlines the class's origins in the context of inter war cruiser policy explains the design and construction process and describes the characteristics of the resulting ships and how these were adapted in the light of wartime developments An overview of service focuses on major engagements assessing the extent to which the class met its designers expectations and detailing the consequences of action damage Concluding chapters continue the story into the Cold War era examining the modernisation programme that kept the remaining ships fit for service during the 1950s Heavily illustrated with contemporary photographs and drawings by A D Baker III John Jordan and George Richardson British Town Class Cruisers provides a definitive reference to one of the Royal Navy's most important Second World War warship designs

Active Shooter Events and Response John P. Blair, Terry Nichols, David Burns, John R. Curnutt, 2013-06-12 The Columbine tragedy on April 20 1999 began a new era in law enforcement as it became apparent that the police response to such mass shootings must be drastically altered By the time the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting occurred on December 14 2012 outdated police response strategies had been replaced with new aggressive tactics used by

The Littorio Class Ermingo Bagnasco, 2011-07-18 For its final battleship design Italy ignored all treaty restrictions on tonnage and produced one of Europe's largest and most powerful capital ships comparable with Germany's Bismarck class similarly built in defiance of international agreements The three ships of the Littorio class were typical of Italian design being fast and elegant but also boasting a revolutionary protective scheme which was tested to the limits as all three were to be heavily damaged in the hard fought naval war in the Mediterranean Roma had the unfortunate distinction of being the first capital ship sunk by guided missile These important ships have never been covered in depth in English language publications but the need is now satisfied in this comprehensive and convincing study by two of Italy's leading naval historians The book combines a detailed analysis of the design with an operational history evaluating how the ships stood up to combat It is illustrated with an amazing collection of photographs many fine line plans and coloured artwork of camouflage schemes adding up to as complete a monograph on a single class ever published Among warship enthusiasts battleships enjoy a unique status As the great success of Seaforth's recent book on French battleships proves that interest transcends national boundaries and this superbly executed study is certain to become another classic in the field
