 community of Hamilton Alabama to investigate what it is like for a young black person to grow up in the contemporary rural South What she finds is that the young people of Hamilton are neither idly passing their time in a stereotypically languid setting nor are they being corrupted by hip hop culture and the perils of the urban North as many pundits suggest Rather they are dynamic and diverse young people making their way through the structures that define the twenty first century

Queer South Rising Reta Ugena Whitlock, 2013-03-01 Queer South Rising Voices of a Contested Place is a collection of essays about the South by people who identify as both Southern and queer The collection s name hints at the provocative nature of its contents placing Queer and South side by side challenges readers to think about each word differently The idea that a queer South might rise undermines the Battle Cry of The South s Gonna rise Again embedded in the collective memory of a conservative South This rising does not refer to a kind of Enlightenment transcendence where the region achieves some sort of distinctive prominence It suggests instead ruptures like furrows in a plowed field where seeds are sown The rising Whitlock envisions is akin to breaking and turning over meanings of Southern place The title further serves to remind readers of the complexities of the place as it calls into question notions of a universal homogenous LGBT queer identity Queer South Rising is the first truly interdisciplinary collection of essays on the South and queerness that deliberately aims for multiple approaches to the topics This collection is intended for a wide audience of regular folks Essays explore multiple intersections of Southern place religion politics sexuality race education that transcend regional boundaries This book counters conventional scholarly texts it invites all readers interested in the South and queer themes to engage with the narratives it holds and perhaps question their assumptions Whitlock has sought in collecting these essays to seek out a diverse group of authors across disciplines professions and interests to shatter perceptions about a nostalgic romanticized Southern culture in general

Communities, Neighborhoods, and Health Linda M. Burton, Susan P. Kemp, ManChui Leung, Stephen A. Matthews, David T. Takeuchi, 2011-02-15 Place is an important element in understanding health and health care disparities More than merely a geographic location place is a socio ecological force with detectable effects on social life independent well being and health Despite the general enthusiasm for the study of place and the potential it could have for a better understanding of the distribution of health in different communities research is at a difficult crossroads because of disagreements in how the construct should be conceptualized and measured This edited volume incorporates an cross disciplinary approach to the study of place in order to come up with a comprehensive and useful definition of place Topics covered include Social Inequalities Historical Definitions of Place Biology and Place Rural vs Urban Places Racialization of a Place Migration Sacred Places Technological Innovations An understanding of place is essential for health care professionals as interventions often do not have the same effects in the clinic as they do in varied naturalistic social settings

Something in These Hills John M. Coggeshall, 2022-09-07 What is the something in these hills that ties mountain families to family land in the southern Appalachians This ethnographic examination challenges contemporary theory and explores two interrelated themes the duality of the southern Appalachians as both a menacing and majestic landscape and the emotional relationship to family land characteristic of long term residents of these mountains To most outsiders the area conjures images of a beautiful yet dangerous place typified by the movie Deliverance To long term residents these mountains have a fundamental emotional hold so powerful that many mourn the sale or loss of family land as if it were a deceased relative How can the same geographical space be both Using a carefully crafted cultural lens John M Coggeshall explains how family land anthropomorphizes metaphorically becoming another member of kin groups He establishes that this emotional sense of place existed prior to recent land losses contrary to some contemporary scholars Utilizing the voices and perspectives of long term residents the book provides readers with a more fundamental understanding of the something in these hills that holds people in place Commercial Poultry Production on Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore Solomon Iyobosa Omo-Osagie II, 2012-06-07 Commercial Poultry Production on Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore traces the beginnings and development of commercial poultry production in this very important region. African Americans were mainly involved in poultry production on the labor supply side which was crucial to the expansion of the industry. Commercial poultry production expanded through vertical integration, acquisitions, mergers, and consolidations and became the dominant economic activity on the Lower Maryland Eastern Shore in the 1950s. Throughout the years, the industry has intermixed with public health and the environment. These integrations were problematic on several fronts as the industry sought to maintain a much needed economic lifeline for the region and yet protect public health and ensure a sustainable environment at the same time. In all, commercial poultry production has continued to fuel the local economy of the Lower Maryland Eastern Shore since its inception in the 1930s.

Necessary Spaces Sandra Murray Nettles, 2013-08-01 In Necessary Spaces: Exploring the Richness of African American Childhood in the South, Sandra Murray Nettles takes the reader on a journey into neighborhood networks of learning at different times and places. Using autobiographical accounts, Nettles discusses the informal instructional practices of community coaches from the perspective of African American adults who look back on their childhood learning experiences in homes, libraries, city blocks, schools, churches, places of business, and nature. These eyewitness accounts reveal necessary spaces, the metaphor Nettles uses to describe seven recurring experiences that converge with contemporary notions of optimal Black child development: connection, exploration, design, empowerment, resistance, renewal, and practice. Nettles weaves the personal stories with social scientific theory and research and practical accounts of community-based initiatives to illuminate how local communities contributed human, built, and natural resources to support children's achievement in schools. The inquiry offers a timely and accessible perspective on how community involvement for children can be developed utilizing the grassroots efforts of parents, children, and other neighborhood residents; expertise from personnel in schools, informal institutions such as libraries and museums; and other sectors interested in disparities in education, health, and the quality of physical settings. Grounded in the environmental memories of African American childhood, Necessary Spaces offers a culturally relevant view of civic participation and sustainable community development at the local level. Educational researchers and policy makers, pre-service and in-service teachers, and people who plan for and work with children and youth in neighborhoods will find this book an engaging look at possibilities for the social organization of educational resources. Qualitative researchers will find a model for writing personal scholarly essays that use the personal to inform larger issues of policy and practice. In Necessary Spaces, local citizens in neighborhoods across the United States will find stories that resonate with their own experiences, stimulate their recollections, and inform and inspire their continuing efforts to create brighter futures for children and communities.
