Rorschach Responses In Old Age:

Rorschach Responses in Old Age Louise Bates Ames, 1995 The authors present here one of the most extensive Rorschach studies to date of people between the ages of 70 and 100 They establish a gradient of responses in older subjects from normal adult performance through a presenile level to senility The material is presented in concrete fashion with specific signs as well as typical scores of presenility and senility and with many complete records typical of each level of performance

Rorschach Assessment of Senior Adults Irving Weiner, Liat Appel, Shira Tibon-Czopp, 2019-05-14 This guide is a much needed reference for clinicians on how to use the Rorschach Inkblot Test with senior adults an essential tool for assessing personality functioning to better identify psychological interventions The book integrates historical developments current research conceptual considerations and therapeutic and diagnostic applications Chapters review basic guidelines for the understanding and interpretation of Rorschach variables including protocol validity interpretation of structural variables thematic imagery and cross cultural normative data sequence analysis and more The authors then provide 10 case illustrations of how the Rorschach indices of cognitive functioning emotional experience interpersonal relatedness and self perception can facilitate differential diagnosis and treatment planning in clinical work with older people These case illustrations are rooted in previously non existent Rorschach reference data based on an international sample of more than 250 senior adults and a second sample of more than 200 patients with Alzheimer s disease Clinicians will come away with a solid empirical basis for distinguishing between normal range personality functioning and manifestations of psychological disorder in the elderly and for providing beneficial interventions to senior adult patients

Rorschach Responses in Old Age Louise Bates Ames, Janet Learned Rodell, Ruth W. Métraux, Richard Norris Walker, 1954 Clinical Gerontology T.L. Brink, 2014-04-04 Here is a major text in psychogeriatrics for all professionals in the field of aging and mental health Leading authorities provide valuable insights into assessment and intervention techniques for use with the mentally impaired elderly Topics include a depression scale for use in later life family therapy therapy in later life and various issues concerning mental health care for the aged

The Clinical Psychology of Aging Martha Storandt, Ilene C. Siegler, Merrill F. Elias, 2012-12-06 It has been estimated that there are at least 2 500 000 adults 10% of the population above age 65 who are currently in need of some sort of mental health services Kramer Taube and Redick 1973 Other estimates are even higher e g Pfeiffer 1977 It is expected that this number will increase as the number of older adults increases over the next 40 years Probably less than 400 clinical psychologists are now providing services to this age group The number of elderly patients actually seen by these psychologists is very very small One national survey found that of 353 psychologists who reported that they had older clients only 495 individuals were seen for psychological testing and 1423 for psychotherapy in the one month just prior to the response Dye in press Assuming that the same individuals were not seen for both testing and therapy within the one month period a questionable assumption approximately 08% of the at least two and one half million older adults in need of psychological services are now being supplied with these services in some form or another Thus the need for increased involvement of clinical psychology with the aged is undeniable However few resources currently exist which will serve to increase the number of clinical psychologists trained to meet this need Probably less than 100 clinical psychologists living today have received any kind of formal graduate training in the clinical psychology of the aging Storandt 1977 Human Aging; a Biological and Behavioral Study National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.), James E. Birren, 1963 Many of the more serious public health problems of our day relate to the later years of life and one of the most challenging issues for scholarly study is the mystery of the phenomenon of aging itself This volume presents the efforts of 22 investigators and is primarily directed toward the understanding of the aging experience and the processes it involves However consonant with the premise of science that pure inquiry affords practical consequences the public health implications of this work are obvious Two strategies are clear in this study first the selection of the healthy community dwelling aged so that we may look anew at the prevailing ideas and research findings concerning the aged and aging which heretofore have stemmed primarily from studies of the sick and institutionalized second the introduction of the collaborative multidisciplinary approach so that there can be a more complete and accurate evaluation of the many factors known or believed to determine the overt manifestations of aging As important as the substantive findings are the methods used in the research investigations Despite the public health significance of the problems affecting the aged ranging from sensory handicaps to housing to mental and physical illness there has been a relative neglect of the study care and treatment of the aged Basic inquiry into the final stages of life therefore is a welcome contribution to our public health effort in this country It is opportune in many ways that this volume appears now at a time of increased national concern for the welfare of our older citizens and for the study and improvement of their health and welfare PsycINFO Database Record c 2005 APA all rights reserved Research Instruments in Social Gerontology David J. Müller, 2012-12-06 Experimental gerontopsychology attempts to test causal hypotheses about old age related behavioral changes by the manipulation of age differences An experimental treatment is introduced with the purpose of equating different age groups with respect to a potentially relevant function If the treatment results in an assimilation of the behavior of the different age groups age by treatment interaction differences in this function are considered as causal for the normally observed behavioral difference If it does not result in an assimilation of the behavior of the different age groups main effect of treatment differences in this function are considered as irrelevant for the normally observed behavioral difference The different interpretations of age by treatment interactions and main effects of treatment in this kind of research are reasonable only if the experimental treatment actually results in an equalization of the age groups with respect to the function of interest As is shown such a functional equalization can neither be demonstrated nor assumed in many cases In such cases studies with either age group can be used to investigate hypotheses about potential causes for old age related behavioral changes studies with young subjects having important advantages over studies with old subjects A test of causal relationships by age by treatment interactions is possible in cases where the experimental treatment evidently results in an equalization of the age groups with respect to the function in question Unfortunately the field of application for this kind of approach is rather limited
