Biography, French, the study of a person's life, from birth to death, usually written by a biographer. The word is derived from the Greek bios (life) and grapho (to write). The first biographies were written by ancient Greek historians, who wrote the lives of famous men. The modern biography is a more detailed and often more critical study of a person's life. It may include a person's childhood, education, career, and private life. The biography is a popular form of literature, and many famous people have had their lives written about. The biography is also an important part of history, as it helps us to understand the lives of the people who shaped the world.

Architecture, the art or science of designing and constructing buildings. From the simple huts of ancient times to the grand cathedrals of the Middle Ages and the modern skyscrapers of the 20th century, architecture has played a central role in human civilization. It is a reflection of the culture and values of a society, and it is a testament to human ingenuity and creativity.
