The Epistemology of Reading and Interpretation René van Woudenberg, 2021-09-16 Reading and textual interpretation are ordinary human activities performed inside as well as outside academia but precisely how they function as unique sources of knowledge is not well understood In this book Ren van Woudenberg explores the nature of reading and how it is distinct from perception and attending to testimony which are two widely acknowledged knowledge sources After distinguishing seven accounts of interpretation van Woudenberg discusses the question of whether all reading inevitably involves interpretation and shows that although reading and interpretation often go together they are distinct activities He goes on to argue that both reading and interpretation can be paths to realistically conceived truth and explains the conditions under which we are justified in believing that they do indeed lead us to the truth Along the way he offers clear and novel analyses of reading meaning interpretation and interpretative knowledge

Phonological Skills and Learning to Read Usha Goswami, Peter Bryant, 2016-03-23 This book sets out to integrate recent exciting research on the precursors of reading and early reading strategies adopted by children in the classroom It aims to develop a theory about why early phonological skills are crucial in learning to read and shows how phonological knowledge about rhymes and other units of sound helps children learn about letter sequences when beginning to be taught to read The authors begin by contrasting theories which suggest that children's phonological awareness is a result of the experience of learning to read and those that suggest that phonological awareness precedes and is a causal determinant of reading The authors argue for a version of the second kind of theory and show that children are aware of speech units called onset and rime before they learn to read and spell An important part of the argument is that children make analogies and inferences about these letter sequences in order to read and write new words
